For April 13, 2015

‘I just love them so much, I had to talk about them!’

—IGGY AZALEA, on deciding to speak publicly about her breast-enhancement surgery

‘It definitely has fed my desire to be a dad.’

—JESSE TYLER FERGUSON, on how Modern Family has influenced his plan to start a family with husband Justin Mikita

‘I think modeling kind of chose me; it’s never what I expected. I always wanted to be an actress.’

—CARA DELEVINGNE, who stars in the upcoming movie Paper Towns

Q&A

Halle Berry

The* Extant *star, 48, has released a lingerie line called Scandale Paris

What inspired your new fashion venture?
My many trips to Paris. I wanted to bring that classic French beauty to America at a price every woman could afford.

Are you enjoying filming season 2 of your CBS drama Extant?
It’s a grueling grind, but it feels easier this year. I’m not nursing my baby [Maceo-Robert, 18 months] around the clock anymore, so I’m sleeping better at night.

Any TV obsessions of your own?
Right now I’m loving Empire. I think the whole world is.

What do you want to tackle next?
I want to do a comedy, and I have two that I’m working on. There is a different side to me that I want to express.

—PATRICK GOMEZ

‘Hey, stupid Internet, I was not man-spreading. I was just enjoying a pleasant ride on the No. 2 train.’

—TOM HANKS, responding to the viral photo of his N.Y.C. subway ride, on the The Late Late Show

‘Even my yoga pants don’t fit me anymore.’

—JIMMY KIMMEL, after revealing he gained 9 lbs. in eight days at the SXSW festival in Austin, Texas

‘There are a lot of amazing moments on this tour, and I’m glad that I got through all of them alive.’

—KATY PERRY, on the behind-the-scenes action on the Prismatic World Tour

People UPDATE

A LONG ROAD Knox (with fiancé Colin Sutherland) at her mother's home in Seattle on March 27.

Amanda Knox Free at Last

On March 27 Italy's supreme court overturned the conviction of Seattle native Amanda Knox and her Italian ex-boyfriend Raffaele Sollecito for the 2007 murder of Knox's roommate, British student Meredith Kercher. It marked the end of a harrowing, nearly eight-year legal odyssey. "I am tremendously relieved and grateful," says Knox, 27, who spent four years in prison before being freed on appeal in 2011. Although she and Sollecito were devastated last year when the acquittals were vacated and the threat of more prison time loomed, they can now rebuild their lives once and for all. "I just want a tranquil and good life," Sollecito, 31, tells PEOPLE. "I am trying to start to live again, one fresh-air breath at a time." Of Knox, who called him to celebrate the news, Sollecito says, "I never doubted her innocence."

Proactively manage your recurring symptoms with LINZESS®

Does it seem like you've tried almost every laxative for your IBS-C or CIC symptoms, but they keep returning? You could need something else. It's time to talk to your doctor about your belly pain and constipation. Then ask about LINZESS, a once-daily capsule that's approved to help adults manage symptoms of IBS with Constipation and Chronic Idiopathic Constipation. "Chronic" means the constipation is long-lasting or keeps coming back. "Idiopathic" means the cause is unknown. LINZESS works differently from laxatives. It is thought to work in two ways: by helping to calm pain-sensing nerves*, and by accelerating bowel movements. LINZESS may relieve your belly pain and let you have more frequent and complete bowel movements that are easier to pass.

Bottom line, if your IBS-C or chronic constipation symptoms keep coming back, ask your doctor about LINZESS today.

*This was seen in animal studies and the relevance to humans is not known.

Who is LINZESS for?

Prescription LINZESS® (linaclotide) is for adults with IBS-C or CIC. It is not known if LINZESS is safe and effective in children.

IMPORTANT RISK INFORMATION

- Do not give LINZESS to children who are under 6 years of age. It may harm them.
- You should not give LINZESS to children 6 to 17 years of age. It may harm them.
- Do not take LINZESS if a doctor has told you that you have a bowel blockage (intestinal obstruction).

Before you take LINZESS, tell your doctor:

- If you have any other medical conditions.
- If you are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if LINZESS will harm your unborn baby.
- If you are breastfeeding or plan to breastfeed. It is not known if LINZESS passes into your breast milk.
- About all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Side Effects

LINZESS can cause serious side effects, including diarrhea, the most common side effect, which can sometimes be severe. Diarrhea often begins within the first 2 weeks of LINZESS treatment. Stop taking LINZESS and call your doctor right away if you get severe diarrhea during treatment with LINZESS.

Other common side effects of LINZESS include gas, stomach-area (abdominal) pain, swelling, or a feeling of fullness or pressure in your abdomen (distension). Tell your doctor if you have any side effect that bothers you or that does not go away. These are not all the possible side effects of LINZESS. For more information, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

In addition, call your doctor or go to the nearest hospital emergency room right away if you develop unusual or severe stomach-area (abdominal) pain, especially if you also have bright red, bloody stools or black stools that look like tar.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA.
Visit www.FDA.gov/medwatch or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

ANGELINA JOLIE PITT
A BRAVE MOM'S NEW SURGERY

BY MARY GREEN

"The kids always seem to cheer her up," says a source of Jolie Pitt (with daughters Zahara and Shiloh at the Kids' Choice Awards on March 28 in L.A.).

WHEN ANGELINA JOLIE PITT WON BEST VILLAIN AT the Nickelodeon Kids' Choice Awards March 28, she was engulfed in hugs and shrieks of joy from daughters Zahara, 10, and Shiloh, 8. With a wide grin, Jolie told the young crowd, "When I was little, like Maleficent, I was told that I was different. And I felt out of place—and too loud, too full of fire, never good at sitting still, never good at fitting in. And then one day I realized something, something that I hope you all realize: Different is good."

Jolie Pitt, 39, has always done things her own way, including →

FROM TOP: LESTER COHEN/WIREIMAGE; JEFF KRAVITZ/FILMMAGIC

"Since getting married, Brad and Angie seem even closer," says a source of the couple (in 2014).

"My heart is in this film," says Jolie Pitt of Unbroken, out now on DVD. "Directing takes all sides of myself. I don't think I could direct something I didn't feel deeply connected to."

detailing her cancer prevention steps in two New York Times op-eds—in 2013 and then again on March 24. In 2013 the mother of six revealed that she had undergone a double mastectomy after testing positive for a mutation in the BRCA1 gene, giving her an 87 percent chance of developing breast cancer and a 50 percent chance of ovarian cancer. Then last week she announced she recently had preventive surgery to remove her ovaries and fallopian tubes. "I feel feminine, and grounded in the choices I am making for myself and my family," she wrote. "I know my children will never have to say, 'Mom died of ovarian cancer.'"

'[HER CHILDREN] ARE THE ULTIMATE DECISION-MAKERS IN HER LIFE. SHE PRIORITIZES FAMILY ABOVE ALL ELSE'
–JOLIE PITT'S DOCTOR, KRISTI FUNK

Before the surgery, Jolie Pitt—who lost her own mother, grandmother and aunt to cancer—spent five fearful days waiting for further results after a blood test showed she had possible signs of cancer. Her husband, Brad Pitt, 51, cut short a trip to France and rushed back to support her. (She was cleared but decided it was time to have the long-planned ovarian surgery.) Pitt has been "a constant, by her side through all the decision-making and operations," says Dr. Kristi Funk of the Pink Lotus Breast Center, who performed her mastectomy. "It's important for the journey to be shared." Jolie Pitt took a rare few days off to recover from the surgery. "Brad makes sure she gets rest," says a source close to the family. "He is very protective and sometimes even has to force Angie to slow down. She doesn't like any fuss. But you can tell she's relieved the cancer scare is over for now."

As always, her kids Maddox, 13, Pax, 11, Zahara, 10, Shiloh, 8, and Vivienne and Knox, 6, helped lift her spirits. While waiting for the test results, she and Pitt were spotted cheering and kissing on the sidelines of Zahara and Shiloh's soccer game. Time with them helps "whenever she is stressed or has a lot on her mind," says the family source. "Whether it's art projects, sports or just discussions, it makes Angie very happy to spend time with them."

In recent days life has been fully back to normal for the Pitts, with Angelina busy editing the couple's upcoming drama By the Sea and Brad preparing to head to New Orleans for a role in The Big Short. She's also promoting the DVD release of Unbroken (see box above). But she knows what's most important of all. "Her children—and being present for the experience of motherhood and grandparenthood—are her primary concerns," says Funk. "They are the ultimate decision-makers in her life. She prioritizes family above all else."

–With Pernilla Cedenheim and Michelle Tauber

Are There Risks?

Jolie Pitt's surgery gives women with the mutated BRCA1 gene the best chance of preventing ovarian cancer, doctors say. It also causes early menopause. Jolie Pitt is taking hormone replacement—which helps her avoid symptoms like hot flashes but also wards off heart disease. The hormones "are safe to continue" until her natural menopause age, says Dr. Kristi Funk, who performed Jolie Pitt's earlier mastectomy. "You're not creating an unnaturally long exposure."

BOY TROUBLE
ONE DIRECTION DRAMA

When Zayn Malik announced on March 25 that he was leaving One Direction after five years "to have some private time," his bandmates Harry Styles, Louis Tomlinson, Niall Horan and Liam Payne said they "totally respect" his decision: "We will always be friends." Behind the scenes, things are far less chummy. Spotted at a recording studio a day after the announcement, Malik has left some "feeling a bit misled," says a source close to 1D. "He told everyone he wants to live a normal life, and the next thing you know, he's going into studios." In the midst of a tour, the band is gearing up to record their fifth album—without Malik. Adds the source: "They don't want a Spice Girls situation and having it all fall apart if one member leaves."—MELODY CHIU with Philip Boucher

AMY SCHUMER GETS PERSONAL

Amy Schumer was 12 years old when life got seriously unfunny: Her father's company went bankrupt, he was diagnosed with multiple sclerosis, and her parents subsequently broke up. "It was Hunger Games," the comedian, 33, says in the new issue of ENTERTAINMENT WEEKLY (on stands now). "And I was like, 'I'll take it from here.' I tried to make everything okay by making everyone laugh about how horrible things were. It kept us alive." After an unabashedly honest interview she gave Howard Stern in 2012 caught Judd Apatow's attention, Schumer teamed up with the director for the upcoming big-screen comedy Trainwreck (due in July). "She was so funny, engaging and very frank," says Apatow. "It felt like someone who had a lot of stories to tell."

The third season of Inside Amy Schumer premieres April 21 on Comedy Central.

DANCING WITH THE STARS' NOAH GALLOWAY

'I CAN DO THIS!'

THE IRAQ VET—AND DOUBLE AMPUTEE—IS WINNING HEARTS AS HE STRIVES FOR THE MIRROR BALL TROPHY

It's been more than nine years since Army vet Noah Galloway lost one arm and one leg while fighting in Iraq, and surprisingly he doesn't miss them anymore. "I don't even know what that feeling is like to have two legs anymore," says the fitness model, 33. Now that he is competing on Dancing with the Stars—the third amputee to do so, after Heather Mills and snowboarder Amy Purdy—"I want to do my best, to dance my best, but I'm not thinking about [any limitations]," he says. "I want to let myself have a good time, have fun and not get frustrated."

Frustration is something he faced head-on when he first returned from the war. "I went through depression," he confesses. "The drinking, eating bad, spending days at the house without leaving. And then one day I realized I wasn't being a good father or a good person. I needed to quit focusing on what I lost and concentrate on what I have left."

When dance practice gets tough (Galloway can't lead with his left arm, as men typically do, and has no knee on that side, further complicating things), he tries to remember what he's taught his children from his two previous marriages, Colston, 10, Jack, 7, and Rian, 5: Never say "can't"—particularly when partner Sharna Burgess is around. "She designed the dances especially for me," says Galloway, who has been dating Army Reserve Specialist Jamie Boyd, 29, since 2013. "There's no need to point out things I'm lacking. She works around it." In the end the trophy isn't as important to him as inspiring his fans. "I don't care how long I last on the show," Galloway says. "I've won."

—LYNETTE RICE

A marathoner and model (he's the new face of Kenneth Cole cologne), he says, "It's funny that the guy missing two limbs has the advantage of being in better shape."

A MOM-OF-THREE'S

BOLD BIKINI PIC

VIRAL HIT

The most talked-about swimsuit photo on social media last week wasn't posted by a celebrity but by Rachel Hollis, 32, mom to Jackson, 8, Sawyer, 6, and Ford, 2½. "I have stretch marks and I wear a bikini," she posted alongside her now-famous photo taken on the beach in Cancún, Mexico. (See Instagram pic above.) Hollis had no idea her picture would go viral. "I just put it out there," she tells PEOPLE. "I thought my mom friends would appreciate it." They weren't the only ones—the L.A.-based blogger now has more than 460,000 Facebook likes and 18,000 comments, many containing uploaded photos of bikini-clad supporters. "What's inspiring is seeing all these women I don't know posting their own pictures," says Hollis. "Women of every size are embracing their bodies and showing them off. I hope other women pick up that torch and run with it." –GABRIELLE OLYA

Bestselling author A.J. Jacobs is building the biggest family tree ever, and he's inviting all of his newfound relatives—270 million so far!—to a reunion on June 6, 2015. (Go to globalfamilyreunion.com to join and get tickets.) Each month he's interviewing one of his famous cousins for PEOPLE. This month: Furious 7 star Ludacris, 37, who recently released his latest album, Ludaversal.

A.J.: We are cousins 38 degrees removed.
A.J.: I found out one of your aunts married a Harlem Globetrotter.
L: I didn't know that. I used to be a fan of theirs, so that is extra cool.
A.J.: Your great-great-grandfather was Native American.
L: Yeah, I knew about that. Choctaw Indian . . . And let me ask you this, man. I'm a light-skinned black man, so how high up does it trace to where I'm not African-American? I've kind of always wondered that.
A.J.: You do have white people among your ancestors. Your great-great-grandfather was named Luther Smith and he was from England and he was probably Jewish, according to your great-grandmother. I'm Jewish. So you and I are mishpocheh.
L: I'm going to have to do some homework on this.
A.J.: Did you know you're pretty close cousins with Richard Pryor?
L: Yep, he's like my fifth or sixth or seventh cousin, something like that? I never got a chance to meet him. But I'm a big fan of his.
A.J.: What was the best advice you think your parents gave you?
L: My father said, "Always think before you do."

CATCHING UP WITH . . . HELEN MIRREN

In the film Woman in Gold, you play a Holocaust refugee fighting to reclaim a painting, with Ryan Reynolds as your lawyer. What's Ryan like?
I must have done something very good in my life to have been allowed to work with Ryan Reynolds. He makes a girl feel good. Some actors are macho and attractive, but they make you feel awkward. Ryan makes you feel great. He'll be a lovely dad.

Meanwhile, on Broadway, you play Queen Elizabeth from her 20s to her 80s in The Audience. How do you pull off the age range?
The costuming is a massive help. The minute I get the older Queen costume and the wig on, I just settle into it. With the younger Queen, I am basically standing up [straight]. And my voice changes.

You've met the Queen three times. Were you nervous?
We all get appalling Queen-itis, as I call it, when we see her. You start talking like this weird person you've never heard before. You get paralyzed.

Do you know what she thinks of your portrayal?
No. She would never say. But many members of the royal household came to see the play in London and said, "That's the boss!"

What's your secret for a successful marriage? You and director Taylor Hackford have been wed 17 years.
The thing is to allow the other person freedom to do what they want to do, which is so important.

You look fantastic at 69. Do you work out?
I'm trying to go to the gym. My thing with exercise is start easy. Buy a fabulous workout outfit. Put it on and do four sit-ups. Take it off and get in the shower.

—K.C. BAKER

Mirren, who won an Oscar for The Queen, plays Elizabeth again in The Audience (written by The Queen's Peter Morgan).

ROYAL BABY WATCH

Who Will Be the Godparents?

Will and Kate broke with tradition, choosing mainly pals over royals for George. A look at the likely contenders for baby No. 2

THE FAMILY FUNSTERS
Prince Harry & Pippa
They "like to pick from the family," says Majesty's Ingrid Seward. Will's cousin Zara Tindall, 33, is George's only royal godparent.
Odds: 6–1, 4–1

THE CELEB POWER COUPLE
David & Victoria Beckham
These pals would bring glamour—and an adorable playmate for George in Harper, 3.
Odds: 50–1, 500–1

THE NOD TO DAD
Laura Lopes
Di's pal Julia Samuel is a godmother to George; Camilla's daughter would honor Charles.
Odds: 16–1

FERGIE'S GIRLS
Beatrice & Eugenie
If they go for a cousin, Beatrice, 26, or Eugenie, 25, would fit the bill.
Odds: 10–1 each

THE PRINCE'S POSSE
Tom van Straubenzee, Batian Craig, James Meade & Charlie Savory
The couple will pick "genuine friends," says historian Hugo Vickers—such as Will's well-heeled pals.
Odds: 10–1, 20–1, 10–1, 20–1

KATE'S BFFS
Trini Foyle, Alice Avenel & Hannah Carter
These young women would continue Di's legacy "of godparents keeping children in touch with the modern world," says historian Robert Lacey.
Odds: 12–1, 16–1, 8–1

A DOZEN COOL THINGS TO SEE, HEAR, READ AND DOWNLOAD THIS WEEK

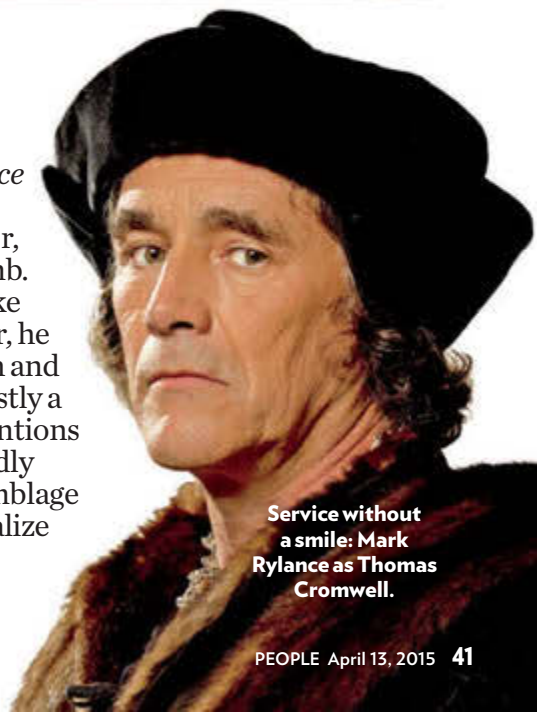

Damian Lewis and Claire Foy as Henry and Anne in the miniseries based on the Hilary Mantel novels—there's a Broadway version too.

No. 1 Wolf Hall

A history-pageant chestnut—Henry VIII's need for a son—is retold with white-knuckle intensity

TV DRAMA Don't mistake this extraordinary Masterpiece offering for a Tudor House of Cards. The rise of Thomas Cromwell, Henry VIII's chief minister and fixer, has none of the happy, greasy malice of Francis Underwood's climb. Cromwell embarks on dangerous, tight-lipped maneuvers to make Anne Boleyn Henry's queen. After she fails to produce a male heir, he reverses tack and, moving just as cautiously, deprives her of crown and head. Mark Rylance's profoundly internalized performance is mostly a matter of his eyes and even more eloquent brows gauging the intentions of his superiors. And Homeland's Damian Lewis is more calculatedly reserved than the familiar jolly ginge Henry. We watch as an assemblage of Britain's greatest historical figures set traps and, occasionally, realize that an enemy has already booked them a suite in the Tower. It's horrifying and also exhilarating. (PBS, April 5, check local listings)

Service without a smile: Mark Rylance as Thomas Cromwell.

No. 2 Outlander

TV DRAMA Time-traveling from the 1940s into the 1740s has given British nurse Claire Randall (Caitriona Balfe) a hookup for the ages: a Scottish husband, Jamie Fraser (Sam Heughan), of rugged temperament and fiery sex appeal. In the first episodes of season 2, he's reassuringly daring in rescuing Claire but is frustratingly pigheaded about letting her assert her place. But this is Outlander, not Sheryl Sandberg—it's chiefly a chance to swoon. (Starz, April 4, 9 p.m.)

Caitriona Balfe and Sam Heughan.

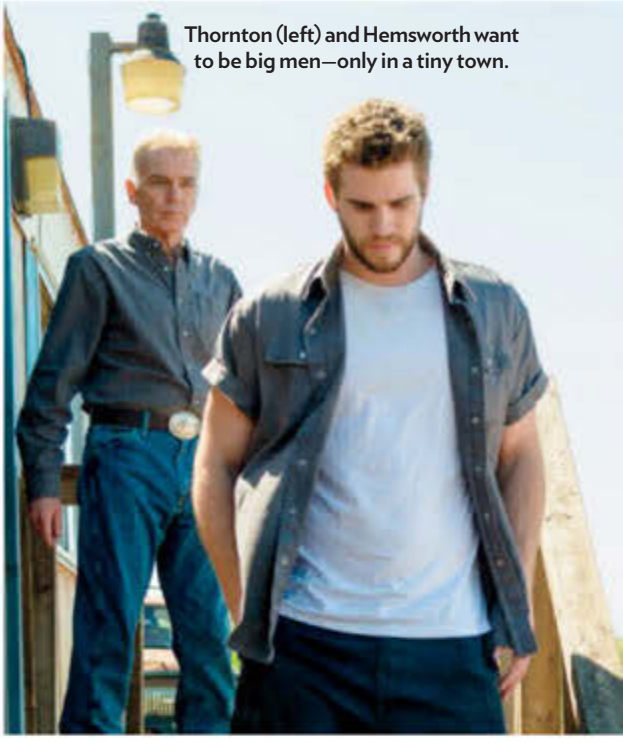

No. 3 Mika, 'Talk About You'

Talk about scrumptious ear candy!

MUSIC POP A liberal dollop of Queen's Freddie Mercury, a dash of Elton John and a sprinkle of Scissor Sisters: That recipe is as close as you'll get to re-creating the infectious fun of Mika's single, which may be his best work since the 2007 hit "Grace Kelly." A giddy love song of the simplest, sunniest sentiments—"I'm stopping strangers and telling them your name"—it'll whet your appetite for his upcoming fourth album.

Can you say enough good things about Mika? Nope.

No. 4 Cut Bank

MOVIE DRAMA A dark crime comedy à la Fargo, Bank stands back and lets a series of insane events unspool after Dwayne (Liam Hemsworth) and Cassandra (Teresa Palmer) accidentally film their small town's first murder. Old pros like Bruce Dern, Oliver Platt and Billy Bob Thornton give tongue-in-cheek performances as authority figures—John Malkovich is a woozy sheriff—while a killer stalks his prey. But the real star is the loopy yarn itself. (April 3, R)

No. 5 Dwight Yoakam, Second Hand Heart

MUSIC

COUNTRY Despite the title, the trailblazing icon's new album isn't something pulled from the dustbin or destined for the scrap heap: This is a work of superb, disciplined musicianship that fuses honky-tonk, rockabilly and blues—it's also being hailed as a throwback to Yoakam's experimentation on the L.A. punk scene years ago. There isn't a wasted note or extraneous lyric. Yet within that taut framework, Yoakam the singer can spin a song's meaning any way he wants. The traditional "Man of Constant Sorrow" kicks off with electric guitars. If the man is sorrowful, he's not licking his wounds. In the title track, a back-and-forth exchange between a man and the woman he hopes will take a risk on love, there's hope, sadness and her naggingly ambiguous, maybe unanswerable response: "When I trusted in love I dreamed in color too." (April 14)

Mirren, Reynolds and the looted Klimt masterwork (inset).

No. 6 Woman in Gold

MOVIE

DRAMA Maria Altmann (Helen Mirren) is a simple woman: She runs a quaint shop, lives in a bungalow in L.A. and owns a $135 million masterpiece by Gustav Klimt. Or rather, she should. Woman in Gold tells the true story of Austrian Holocaust refugee Altmann as she seeks to reclaim the painting—a portrait of her aunt—stolen by the Nazis. She hires lawyer Randy Schoenberg (Ryan Reynolds) to plead her case, though the poor guy fights his feisty client as much as he does Austrian authorities. But many of the film's tenderest scenes are in the past: Orphan Black's Tatiana Maslany is stirring as young Maria, forced to leave more than just the art behind. And that world-famous painting? How intimate it seems now. (April 1, PG-13)

Oscar nominees Knightley and Cumberbatch.

No. 7 The Imitation Game

DVD DRAMA A prestige biopic about WWII code-breaker Alan Turing (Benedict Cumberbatch) sounds like a cure for insomnia. But with eight Oscar nods and an award-winning script, Imitation is witty and emotionally engaging. Cumberbatch is sympathetic as Turing, a genius required to hide his homosexuality behind his own code of inscrutability. Keira Knightley is brisk and brainy as his colleague Joan Clarke. The DVD offers scant extras, so just enjoy the history. (March 31)

No. 8 The Real Housewives of New York City

Welcome back, Bethenny Frankel!

TV REALITY Much like riding a bike, being a Housewife is a skill you never forget. Hop back on, and by the end of an hour you're wedged into a limo seat or bistro banquette, crying to someone loosely designated as "friend" over the unhappiness of life—wait, yours? How?! So here is Bethenny, unapologetic about and unbowed by the disappointment of her talk show ("I did not really enjoy doing it"), still peppering her self-pity with smart sarcasm, still quick to tout her brand. And cry. She is, paradoxically or not, a joy to see again. (Bravo, April 7, 9 p.m.)

Bethenny, who left the show in 2010, rejoins the fray for season 7.

Paul Walker heads out with the team one last time

MOVIE ACTION This could be the surprise tear-jerker of the year: The seventh in the colossal franchise closes with a memorial montage to Walker, who died in 2013. It's tough and sad to bid farewell to such casual star appeal, to those blond, West Coast good looks. The movie that precedes it is a fun, outrageous string of stunts with cars, planes and drones. It also features Dwayne Johnson's massive biceps. If Noah's ark had tanked, the animal pairs could have boarded on his arms, males to the left, females to the right. (April 3, PG-13)

No. 10 Rihanna 'Bitch Better Have My Money'

MUSIC HIP-HOP Rihanna dropped this surprise single during tax season—if anything, her crushing insistence on gimme, gimme outdoes even Uncle Sam. RiRi channels Kanye West—her coproducer here—on a grinding, hard-edged track, warning us, "Don't act like you forgot I call the shots." With her eighth album due soon, it's unlikely we will.

A son's elegy, a moving novel about Huntington's disease and a family drama by the author of The Dive from Clausen's Pier EDITED BY KIM HUBBARD

BOOK OF THE WEEK

Scott Simon Unforgettable

MEMOIR In 2013 Simon used Twitter to send moving dispatches from the deathbed of his elderly mother. Now, in a return to the bighearted storytelling that made him a star NPR correspondent, he pays full tribute to the ex-showgirl who, between lovers and odd jobs, taught her only son to be honest, kind and entertaining. Be assured, tears will fall.

Lisa Genova Inside the O'Briens

NOVEL Joe has a wife he adores, four kids and a fulfilling job as a police officer. Then he begins experiencing bouts of rage, forgetfulness and body movements that make him dance like a puppet on strings. Genova (Still Alice) compassionately details how an illness—this time Huntington's disease—can destroy not only the afflicted but those who love them as well.

Ann Packer The Children's Crusade

NOVEL "Let's start a baby," Penny Blair whispers to her husband one day in the pre-Feminine Mystique 1950s. "Right here. Right now." Soon she and Bill are raising four children at their Northern California home—and Penny, an aspiring artist, has learned that motherhood doesn't much interest her. How her sons and daughter are shaped by her emotional elusiveness forms the center of this absorbing novel, which celebrates family even as it catalogs its damages.

Why I Care

PERSONAL STORIES ABOUT GIVING BACK

Every year for my birthday I've gone to L.A.'s Skid Row to feed and clothe the homeless. This year we [partnered with Union Rescue Mission and] planned the first-ever Carnival of Love there—in the worst place in the country. Almost 300 volunteers and 800 homeless came out, and for four hours you couldn't tell the difference between the two because they were all mingling, laughing and loving. We got a rock-climbing wall, a bouncy castle, feet-washing stations, face painting, dog grooming, caricature artists and a deejay. We had a sock station, so after they got their feet washed, they could get clean socks. We had clothes for men, women, children, infants—more clothes than we could ever imagine. At the carnival one girl held an older man's hand while walking him through. They didn't even talk, but the man was in tears because he said nobody had touched him in years. That connection is a perfect example of why this is important. It's important to address problems that are happening a few blocks away from us. I don't think that any one of us can end an epidemic of homelessness, but we can create connections—and sometimes all people need is hope.

Robert Durst: The Mystery Deepens

Was he involved in the disappearances of three other women?

As the cloud of suspicion over New York real estate scion Robert Durst darkens, authorities are asking whether the eccentric millionaire has more secrets. Since Durst's March 14 arrest—the day before the finale of HBO's Andrew Jarecki-directed docuseries The Jinx: The Life and Deaths of Robert Durst—for the 2000 murder of Susan Berman, authorities have been looking into three cold cases with links to Durst. Vermont student Lynne Schulze, 18, vanished in 1971 after shopping at Durst's health-food store; Kristen Modafferi, 18, went missing in 1997 in San Francisco when he was in the city; and Karen Mitchell, 16, was last seen in 1997 in Eureka, Calif. (a sketch of a suspect resembles Durst).

But Durst's attorney Dick DeGuerin scoffs at the reports. "It's like roaches coming out when you turn lights off," he tells PEOPLE. "These agencies are trying to clear old cases where there's no evidence."

Families are hopeful that evidence will emerge: "Oakland police are saying officially there is nothing to link [Modafferi and Durst]," says Joan Scanlon-Petruski, a spokeswoman for the Modafferi family, "but they're telling us, 'Wait and see. Sometimes these things take a long time to come out.'"

COURTS

On March 25 the U.S. Army charged Sgt. Robert "Bowe" Bergdahl, 29, with desertion and misbehavior before the enemy. In 2009 Bergdahl was captured by the Taliban in Afghanistan, and his release was brokered last May. If convicted, he could face life in prison.

TRAGEDY

A March 26 explosion at a New York City apartment building in the East Village left 22 people injured, four of them critically. Authorities are investigating whether the explosion and subsequent fire, which leveled three buildings and damaged a fourth, was the result of a gas line being "inappropriately accessed." Three days later crews searching the site found two bodies, suspected to be those of Moises Ismal Locón Yac, 27, and Nicholas Figueroa, 23, who had been reported missing. Sopranos actress Drea de Matteo, 43, lost her apartment of 22 years.

Drea de Matteo lost her N.Y.C. apartment in the March 26 blaze.

DEATHS

Hollywood golden age actress Sally Forrest died on March 15 at age 86 after battling cancer. Forrest, who starred in 1956's While the City Sleeps, was the protégée of Hollywood trailblazer and filmmaker Ida Lupino. ● Tony-winning stage and film director Gene Saks, 93, died on March 28. He was suffering from pneumonia.

CELEBRATING 15 YEARS

RASCAL FLATTS

THE MEGA-SELLING TRIO SAY THEY ARE JUST GETTING STARTED

It's been 15 years since Jay DeMarcus, Joe Don Rooney and Gary LeVox first began performing together, but the three aren't taking their success for granted. After their just-wrapped Las Vegas residency, they are looking ahead to their Riot tour this summer. "There's a newness to Rascal Flatts right now," says Rooney. "I think the three of us, a few years back, we looked at each other and wondered if we were ready to end. But here we are, another three, four, five years down the road, and it feels like we have momentum and a different kind of energy." And though their lives have changed in the past 15 years—"we all have families, now we all have kids," says Rooney—they hope to keep making music together for years to come. "When you've had success it's easy to rest on that and not be as hungry," says LeVox. "It's been fun to reinvigorate ourselves and find we still want to be doing this."

BALLOT CHEAT SHEET

WHO WILL WIN?

THE 50TH ANNUAL ACM AWARDS AIR APRIL 19 ON CBS. HERE ARE OUR PICKS FOR WHO'S LIKELY TO TAKE HOME SOME HARDWARE

Hot Picks (from top): Bryan, Rhett, Lambert, Florida Georgia Line, Little Big Town and Brooks.

Entertainer of the Year

- ☐ Jason Aldean
- ☐ Garth Brooks
- ☐ Luke Bryan
- ☐ Miranda Lambert
- ☐ Florida Georgia Line

How can you beat a guy who invented modern country showmanship? Garth's big comeback might edge out the forces that are Luke and Miranda.

Male Vocalist of the Year

- ☐ Jason Aldean
- ☐ Dierks Bentley
- ☐ Luke Bryan
- ☐ Eric Church
- ☐ Brad Paisley
- ☐ Blake Shelton

With an album that boasts a record six No. 1s, Luke has the edge in a field so tough they added an extra nominee. But don't count out a first-ever vocalist win for the much-nominated Dierks.

Female Vocalist of the Year

- ☐ Brandy Clark
- ☐ Miranda Lambert
- ☐ Martina McBride
- ☐ Kacey Musgraves
- ☐ Carrie Underwood

She's in a class by herself; there's little doubt Miranda will take home her sixth win.

Vocal Duo of the Year

- ☐ Brothers Osborne
- ☐ Dan + Shay
- ☐ Florida Georgia Line
- ☐ Maddie & Tae
- ☐ The Swon Brothers

Place your bets early and often—the duo are a lock.

Vocal Group of the Year

- ☐ Lady Antebellum
- ☐ Little Big Town
- ☐ Rascal Flatts
- ☐ The Band Perry
- ☐ Zac Brown Band

Lady A has a chance to take back the trophy after two years, but with a nominated album and lots of industry love, the foursome should triumph.

New Artist

- ☐ Sam Hunt
- ☐ Thomas Rhett
- ☐ Cole Swindell

Red-hot Thomas Rhett scored three No. 1 singles off his debut album, It Goes Like This, making him the first country artist in 20 years—and only the second person ever (Clay Walker was the first)—to accomplish that.

THE 'A GUY WALKS INTO A BAR' SINGER SHARES THE MUSIC OF HIS LIFE

First concert you attended?
"Michael Jackson. It was the Bad tour. My parents took me, but I was like 5, so I don't remember it that much, which kind of sucks."

First album you ever bought?
"Tim McGraw's Not a Moment Too Soon. It had some classics on it, 'Indian Outlaw' and 'Don't Take the Girl.'"

First song you learned to play on the guitar?
"I didn't learn to play the guitar until I was in high school, but I taught myself 'He Stopped Loving Her Today.' My mom was married to George Jones's guitar player, so we were out on the road with him, and I heard it all the time."

Song you recently bought?
"I heard Kenny Chesney's 'Better as a Memory' on the radio the other day and was reminded what a good song it is, so I bought it."

Fave workout music?
"Pretty much anything Metallica. It helps get me going and keep me going. Looking at me now; I obviously need to get started."

Song you'd be happy to never sing again?
"'Dixieland Delight' by Alabama. I love them, but I can't count how many times that song was requested when I was playing Tootsie's on Lower Broad. Anybody who's ever played a bar in the South can play that in their sleep."—KAY WEST

RASCAL FLATTS
DON’T MISS A MOMENT

Wherever their touring takes them, the men who make up the country music supergroup Rascal Flatts—Joe Don Rooney, Gary LeVox and Jay DeMarcus—want to make every moment count. “Life on the road is an adventure,” says Jay, “and we’ve been on the road a long, long time.” Their favorite moments are the ones spent with family, with fans, and at a table sharing great food.

NEXIUM LEVEL PROTECTION™

The Meal. The Music. The Moment.

HOT SPOT
"You have enough to worry about when you're on stage," says Jay. "The last thing you want to worry about is frequent heartburn. That's what's great about Nexium 24HR—you can live your life without hesitation."

MOMENTS TO SAVOR
"There are moments on stage when the three of us come together and the music stops and you hear the roar of the crowd," says Joe Don, "That's a moment we share with fans that is so special. It makes it all worth it."

FAN FAVORITES
"My favorite part about being on tour and connecting with fans is hearing their stories about what our songs have meant to them," says Gary. "They're truly the reason we make music."

FOOD. FAMILY. FUN.

What moments make the best memories—at home and away? Nexium 24HR provides 24-hours of protection from frequent heartburn so that you can enjoy them all, hesitation-free.

ME & MY DOG

KACEY MUSGRAVES

THE REIGNING ACM ALBUM OF THE YEAR WINNER SHARES WHY HER 3-LEGGED PUP PEARL IS A PRECIOUS GEM

"I have her drawings on the bus and on my phone. It's so cool," Musgraves says of Pearl cartoons by fan Marissa Troy.

1. She came looking for love

"The day after my 21st birthday, we were playing tennis in East Nashville near my house, and she came out of nowhere. She was just a stray puppy and was ridden with fleas but had the sweetest spirit. She watched us for hours. We took her home and cleaned her up. I think she found me, really."

2. She's a survivor

"When she came to me, she had four legs. About three years ago, she was outside without a leash with my family, and she took off after another dog and was hit by a car. Her front leg was amputated, so now she's a tripod. It was an ordeal, but she's done amazing. I swear she's faster on three legs. When she walks, she kind of hops, and it makes her ears flop. It's so cute."

3. She's a cuddler

"When I'm watching a movie, she has to be touching me. She'll put her paw on me or wiggle right up to me. You can hold her in any position and she stays and loves it. And she has a heart-shaped nose! She's special."

4. She's got her own fan base

"A lot of fans have drawn Pearl, and one girl, Marissa Troy, who's going to school to be an animator, learned to draw her exactly from pictures. It means a lot because I can't take Pearl on the road—she can be a little iffy with people outside of our camp—so I really miss her. To know my fans care about her means something."

MIRANDA LAMBERT'S STYLIST SHOWS HOW TO LAYER ON THE BLING—ONE RING AT A TIME

By CHERYL BRODY FRANKLIN

MIRANDA'S STYLE

At the Grammy Awards, Lambert wore delicate bands on almost every finger. "I always say more is better," Lambert says. "I'm from Texas, so I just like it." Her stylist Tiffany Gifford chose elegant designs from Jennifer Fisher and Meira T, which kept the spotlight on Lambert's gown and added a hint of sparkle. "It's a huge trend to wear multiple rings on one finger or on every finger," says Gifford.

SOME TIPS TO GET IT RIGHT:

1. Don't worry about mixing metals. Gifford chose yellow and rose varieties of gold, but anything goes, even silver. "There really isn't a rule," she says. "All of the rings are quite small, so it's nice to wear different colors."

2. Stick with your personal style. "Miranda's wedding ring is a staple—she never takes it off—so the other jewelry complemented it."

3. Pile on and then edit. "You can put on as many as five or six rings depending on how small they are," says Gifford, "but two or three is a good amount."

THE AMAZING WORLD OF TRISHA YEARWOOD

FROM FURNITURE DESIGN TO HER COOKING EMPIRE TO A WORLD TOUR WITH HER HUSBAND, GARTH BROOKS, THE SINGER TURNED LIFESTYLE MAVEN HAS NEVER BEEN BUSIER

BY MICHELLE TAUBER

PHOTOGRAPHS BY STEWART SHINING

Trisha Yearwood glances down at her nails during a recent photo shoot and shrugs. "I didn't even have time for a manicure," she says with a sigh. "Oh well!" The star was in Detroit just 48 hours earlier performing with her husband, Garth Brooks, on their blockbuster world tour, and she just clocked a 10-hour day in Nashville shooting commercials for her new furniture line. What she really wants is to change into sweats and call it a night. (She finally gets her chance several hours after dark.) "I would say that in 24 years of touring and making music, this is the busiest I have ever been," the Grammy winner says a few days later in between back-to-back concerts in Buffalo, N.Y. "Garth always has 10,000 balls in the air, and I used to look at him and go, 'How does he do it?' But now I look at myself and go, 'Well, I've kinda got the same thing going on!'"

Duet Partners

Touring with her husband (onstage together last year) has been a natural pairing, says Yearwood. Still, "both of us are very opinionated," she admits. "We try not to give each other advice unless we're asked."

After rounding her 50th birthday last fall, Yearwood has never had more pots simmering at one time. Among those currently occupying the front burner: promoting PrizeFighter, her first album in seven years; touring and recording an upcoming Christmas duets album with Brooks; shooting the sixth season of her hit Food Network show Trisha's Southern Kitchen; her new Trisha Yearwood Home Collection for furniture giant Klaussner; her own cookware line, Precious Metals, and a new cookbook. Just about the only thing on the back burner these days? Time off. "We're happy we get to be together on tour, but I also need a little time on the couch, with the dogs at my feet, reading a book and Garth on a bulldozer somewhere," she says with a laugh. "It's been fast and furious."

It's a major shift from her low-key life as a "bonus" soccer mom to Brooks's three daughters in Oklahoma, where the couple spent most of the past decade focusing on family after Garth retired from touring in 2000. "He said, 'When our youngest goes to college, if there's still an audience for us, we'll think about touring again,'" she recalls. "When he said that, our youngest was maybe in fourth grade, and I thought, 'Man, that's gonna be forever until she graduates from high school.' Now she's a freshman in college!"

Looking back, Yearwood credits her time at home with inspiring the "happy accident" of her second career as a lifestyle mogul. "I was sitting in Oklahoma attending a lot of soccer games, and I was restless," she says. "I'm still a creative person, and I was trying to find something I could do and still be at home." Approached by a publisher to write her memoirs, she opted instead to pen a cookbook. "There was no 10-year plan of eventually I'd like to have a cooking show and start my own furniture line," she says. "The first book was with my mom and sister, and to get all our family recipes in one place was just wonderful. All I try to do is make sure I'm walking through doors that make sense to me."

SHIRT: LAFAYETTE148 NY; NECKLACE: MARGO MORRISON; BEN KREBS ©2015 GCOM, LLC. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

“OUR NEST IS EMPTY NOW, BUT WE’RE NEVER HOME!”

As Yearwood's fans know, she also has an unwavering loyalty to "the average girl who cooks," as she puts it—even if that means pointing out her less-than-perfect nails or spilling her ingredients on-camera. "America knows you don't show up in your kitchen in hair and makeup every day," she says. "We joke about that—'Yes, I always look this way in the kitchen! And I never make a mistake!' Listen, someday I would love to go to culinary school and know what all those guys know. But I think most people cook like I do."

That includes a mix of healthy recipes, like Garth's favorite black bean lasagna and a no-guilt chicken salad (see sidebar), along with her signature down-home indulgences. After shedding 30 lbs. in 2013 with a low-fat diet and Zumba fitness routine, she gained 10 lbs. following the couple's move from Oklahoma to Nashville last fall. "My entire routine was completely turned upside-down," she admits. "It took me a few months to figure out a new one." These days she follows the "80/20 rule," she says, "where 80 percent of the time I try to make healthy choices, and 20 percent of the time I make Crock-Pot macaroni and Saltine Crack [her famous chocolate-covered crackers]." Although being on the road presents added challenges, "I've learned that the salad bar is my friend."

"IT'S ABOUT BALANCE. NO ONE IS PERFECT"

And her "biggest cheerleader?" Garth, of course. "He's the guy who says, 'There's nothing you can't do.' One of the things we respect about each other is that we're both independent," she says. "He makes more money than I do, but I'm an independent girl and always have been. I want to pull my weight in life and in the relationship." The way things are going, she'll soon be pulling lots more—which suits Brooks just fine. Says Yearwood: "He jokes that he's almost to the point where he can sit by the pool with the other husbands!" ●

BEN FINK

TRISHA'S NEW COOKBOOK

Yearwood's third book features healthy food "that you love," she says. "I want choices that are good for me but taste great."

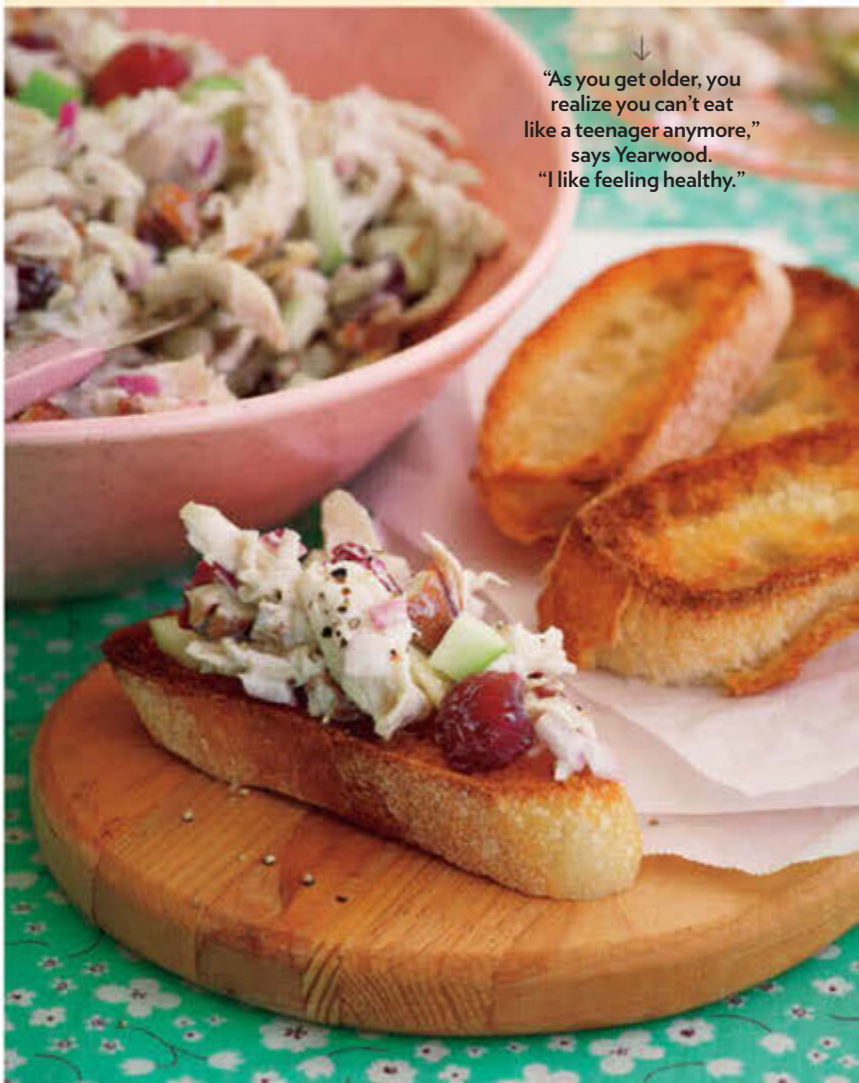

Billie's Houdini Chicken Salad

Trisha's trainer Billie Jo Flanagan came up with this recipe that "magically escapes the high calories of a traditional Waldorf salad," Yearwood writes.

MAKES: 4 servings HANDS-ON TIME: 35 minutes
TOTAL TIME: 45 minutes

- 4 (6-oz) boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 2 small Granny Smith apples, cored and finely chopped
- ½ cup reduced-fat plain Greek yogurt
- ½ cup halved seedless red grapes
- ½ cup slivered almonds
- ½ cup finely chopped pecans
- ¼ cup dried cranberries
- ½ small red onion, finely chopped
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper
- Toasted baguette slices

1. Bring chicken to a boil in water to cover in a large Dutch oven over high heat. Reduce heat; simmer for 20 minutes. Remove from heat; drain well. Cool completely. Shred and cut into bite-size pieces.
2. Stir together chicken and next six ingredients. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Cover and refrigerate. Serve with toasted baguette slices .

"As you get older, you realize you can't eat like a teenager anymore," says Yearwood. "I like feeling healthy."

BEHIND THE LYRICS WITH

KENNY CHESNEY

THE SINGER'S NEW SINGLE IS A CELEBRATION OF THE FREE SPIRITS HE'S LOVED AND LONG ADMIRED

Wild Child

By Kenny Chesney, Shane McAnally and Josh Osborne

"I'm drawn to simplicity, to someone organic and creative and artsy. It's sexy when someone can be simple. The designer-clothes thing can be a turn-off."

Looks like a royal in a thrift store dress
Keeps my heart and her hair a mess
She goes where the wind suggests
She goes, who knows
Got a spirit that can't be tamed
She's a calico pony on an open plain
I know I'll never be the same no more, for sure

"Some people aren't meant to stay in the barn. They want to run free, like Seabiscuit! And that's attractive."

She's a wild child
Got a rebel soul with a whole lot of gypsy wild style
She can't be tied down but for a while
I'll be falling free and so alive
Might break my heart but God she drives me wild child

"It's a very specific soul that likes to go to those festivals. They are the ultimate free spirits."

"I've had my heart broken and have broken hearts. Neither one feels good. But this kind of person in this song, she can be hard to capture."

You've never heard of her favorite band
Unless you been to Bonnaroo or Burning Man
She's Penny Lane in a Chevy van, she loves to love
And she loves me

"I didn't come up with that line, but it fit the song. And it feels good to sing."

Wild child
Got a rebel soul with a whole lot of gypsy wild style
She can't be tied down but for a while
I'll be falling free and so alive
Might break my heart but God she drives me wild child

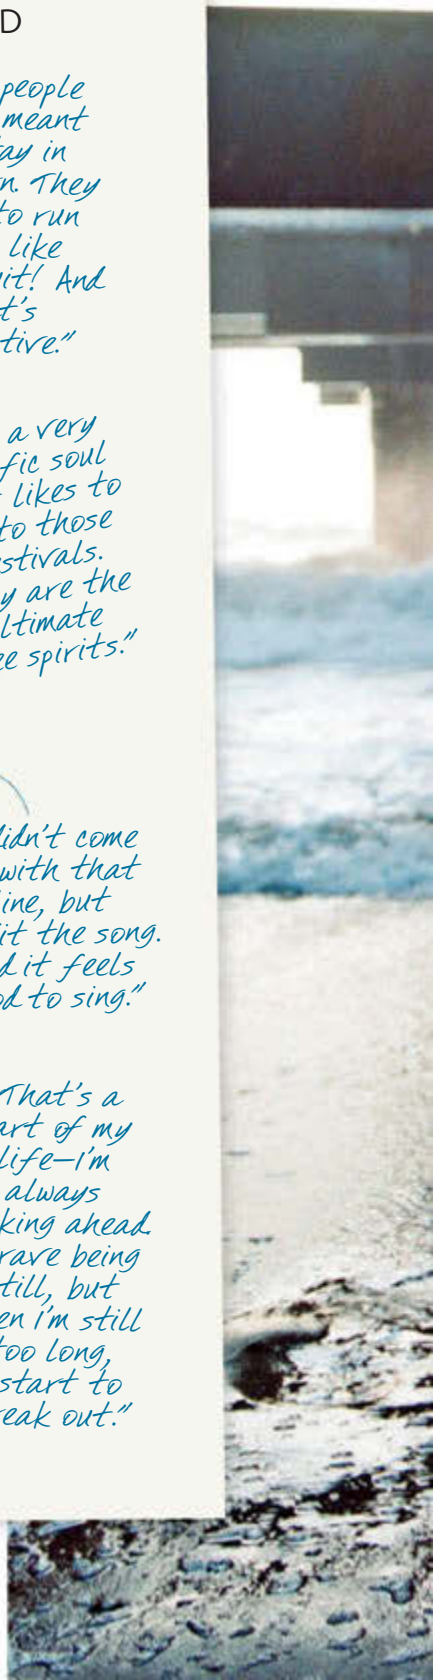

"My favorite lines. It's about learning from people and being inspired. She's adventurous and loves with all she's got."

She'll be here until she runs
Some just have to chase the sun

"That's a part of my life—I'm always looking ahead. I crave being still, but when I'm still too long, I start to freak out."

She's a wild child
Got a rebel soul with a whole lot of gypsy wild style
She can't be tied down but for a while
I'll be falling free and so alive
Might break my heart but God she drives me wild child

A kaleidoscope of colors in her mind child
A touch of crazy hides behind her wild smile
So simple yet experimental
Innocent but still a little wild child

In His Own Words

"'Wild Child' is about the kind of women I've been drawn to in my life. They have this gypsy spirit and a hunger for life. They want to taste it all and color outside the lines. It's different from a lot of songs I've written. It's more than just a one-on-one love song. It's a love for that kind of soul. I don't know if I could have written it 10 years ago because I've changed so much. I wanted to let women know that they are seen for how they are and who they are. It's not about what they wear; it's about how they walk through the world. It's about their heart. I've heard from so many girl friends of mine about how much this song has touched them, and it makes me feel so great that they are being seen. I'll be doing 'Wild Child' in my show the rest of my life. And I'm proud of that."

The debut single from the five-member band—which is touring with Kenny Chesney—is about "a girl who is with the wrong guy," says lead singer Matthew Ramsey. "It's a situation where you want to call up the girl and say, 'Hey, you belong with me.' People think it's a song about cheating. But it's a song about how life is short, and if you want something, you go for it."

Real-life lovebirds Shannon Haley and Ryan Michaels sing about breakup baggage with a tune that pays homage to a classic love song—Lonestar's "Amazed." "It's about a couple who have a song, but when they break up, it becomes just another love song," says Haley. Fun fact: Lonestar's Richie McDonald cowrote the tune.

Lee Ann Womack

The latest single from Womack's critically acclaimed 2014 album The Way I'm Livin' doesn't pull any punches. "It's about this person wanting to escape their town and maybe even something going on in their life," says the Grammy winner. "It's haunting. And a little desperate sounding." Which is exactly why Womack fell in love with the song at first listen. "It sounded like real life, and so much of what I hear and see—not just in music but in society today—is so retouched," she says. "But this song isn't beautified and slick; it's a real-life situation."

Casey James

Almost five years after James came in third on the ninth season of American Idol, the Texas native is back with his second album and a single about getting one's heart broken. "This is a song about the exact moment you see your ex again," says the singer. "It's that feeling of getting punched right in the heart and losing your breath, as if the breakup just happened yesterday."

RaeLynn

The former Voice contestant cowrote this tune after what she calls a "sneak-attack date," when a guy she thought was just a friend ended up confessing deeper feelings for her over dinner one night. "For a boy, he was very transparent," she says. "It was cool to have a guy be so open and tell me exactly how he feels. I had never experienced that before. It's very attractive."

Maddie & Tae

Madison Marlow and Taylor Dye—the duo behind the 2014 hit "Girl in a Country Song"—call their second single "a song of encouragement." "We moved to Nashville alone at 17; no family, nothing, and it was hard," says Marlow. "But we learned that when you are most uncomfortable, that's when you're growing the most. That's how you learn how to fly."

Aaron Watson

The veteran Texas singer penned this "sweet and simple" tune as a love song to his wife. "I wanted it to just lift her up on a pedestal where she rightfully belongs and let the whole world know how wonderful she is," says Watson. "She's amazing."

Will Hoge

"This is the story of me growing up in this little town called Franklin, Tenn.," says Hoge of the single off his new album Small Town Dreams. "It's a place where everybody's parents raise everybody's kids, and it's about a bunch of small-town kids trying to have a good time."

DARIUS RUCKER
I COUNT MY BLESSINGS

I'M THANKFUL FOR …

…MY FAMILY
I've got a lot of people in my corner, and I'm not just talking about my wife and kids. I've been blessed with sisters and brothers, cousins and in-laws. We play games, sing karaoke and just enjoy each other's company. By far, they're all my greatest blessing.

…MY VOICE
I'm no Michael Bublé, but I have a distinct sound. I can carry a tune, and God has blessed me with a sound that people seem to like.

…FOOTBALL
I love sports, and I get to share that with my kids. I've always been a Miami Dolphins fan, and my son decided to like the Green Bay Packers! Where did I go wrong? But we've bonded over sports. It gives us something to laugh about.

…GREAT FRIENDS
You don't get a lot of close friends over the years, but I've been blessed with some people who will be there for me, no matter what happens.

…THE UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA
I was fortunate enough to go there for college and meet some great people. The Gamecocks have definitely influenced my life.

…GOLF
I'm an old dude now. I don't stay up and party. But I love it when I get to play a round of golf with my buddies. That makes me happy.

Rucker released his fourth solo album, Southern Style, March 31.

The alpine village of Le Vernet set up a memorial for the victims of Lubitz (left, running a half marathon in 2010).

PLANE-CRASH TRAGEDY

A PILOT'S DARK SECRETS

Andreas Lubitz only ever wanted to fly. So what led him to deliberately plunge Germanwings Flight 9525 into the French Alps with 149 innocent souls aboard?

To neighbors in Montabaur, Germany, Andreas Lubitz was the nice guy from down the road, as generous with a smiling "Hallo!" as he was with advice for others looking to turn a love of flying into a career. "I want to become a pilot too, and Andreas was supernice, offering me a lot of details about it," Konstantin Keidel, 20, tells PEOPLE. Adds another from his hometown, Johannes Rossbach: "Andreas was friendly on the surface and seemed normal and happy." But beneath his sunny profile, the 27-year-old Lubitz harbored a much darker side. According to reports that seem to turn up new, disturbing information daily, Lubitz suffered from depression, suicidal tendencies and nightmares. An ex-girlfriend recalled to Germany's Bild newspaper that the troubled young man would sometimes awake screaming, "We're going down!" These secrets are only now coming to light as shocked, heartbroken families from 18 countries mourn loved ones suddenly and senselessly gone—and struggle to understand how the young copilot who giddily flew gliders as a teenager became the man who authorities believe flew himself and 149 innocents aboard Germanwings Flight 9525 to their deaths in a remote part of the French Alps.

The Airbus A320—flying under Lufthansa's budget Germanwings airline—was traveling from Barcelona to Düsseldorf when it slammed into the mountains on March 24, killing all aboard. The flight's final moments, revealed on the plane's cockpit recordings, are horrifying: Lubitz telling his pilot, Capt. Patrick Sondheimer, that everything was under control and encouraging him to use the restroom; the sound of Lubitz locking the door behind the captain; Sondheimer banging and shouting, "Open the damn door"; the sound of Lubitz's breathing, seemingly calm and unperturbed, as the plane headed directly toward oblivion. Then, in the final seconds, the sounds of passengers screaming, then silence. "We have to accept that a plane was crashed on purpose," says Lufthansa CEO Carsten Spohrs.

As authorities investigate the tragedy, a picture has emerged of a young man whose life was coming apart.

THE FINAL MINUTES

10:01 a.m.
Flight takes off from Barcelona, about 20 minutes behind schedule.

10:27 a.m.
Jet reaches cruising altitude of 38,000 feet. Captain Patrick Sondheimer gives command to copilot Lubitz and leaves the cockpit.

10:29 a.m.
Lubitz begins an unapproved, straight-line descent. Capt. Sondheimer tries to get back into the flight deck but can't. He knocks and bangs on the door.

10:31 a.m.
Jet begins descending at a rate of more than 3,000 feet per minute.

10:32–10:40 a.m.
Alarms sound, and Capt. Sondheimer is heard trying to break through the cockpit door. Lubitz does not respond, although his breathing can be heard on the cockpit voice recorder. The cries of passengers can also be heard.

10:40 a.m.
Investigators think they hear the plane's right wing scrape a mountaintop.

Noon
Reports of a plane crash in Southern France begin to surface.

After raiding the Düsseldorf flat Lubitz shared with his girlfriend, police discovered antidepressants and multiple doctors' notes excusing Lubitz from flying—including one for March 24, the day of the crash, which the copilot had torn up. German prosecutors say Lubitz's flight training in Bremen, Germany, and Phoenix was interrupted six years ago for unknown reasons and that he had received psychotherapy for "suicidal tendencies" for several years before becoming a pilot in 2013. He was subsequently deemed "100 percent flight-worthy without any limitations," Lufthansa's Spohr said, but under Germany's strict medical privacy laws, he was counted on to self-report any mental illness. That was unlikely, given what a former girlfriend known only as "Maria W." told Bild: that Lubitz worried about "health problems" dashing his dream of being a Lufthansa captain, and that he told her, "One day I'm going to do something. . . and everyone will know my name and remember." He reportedly sought treatment for trouble with his eyesight, though investigators later

VICTIMS OF FLIGHT 9525

A Mother-Daughter Getaway

Emily Selke, 22, was that rare college grad who found a way of turning her passion (for music festivals) into a career (in festival planning). Her former Drexel University professor Xela Batchelder told The Philadelphia Inquirer that Emily also had "the ideal relationship" with her mom, Yvonne Selke, 58, a Washington, D.C.-area defense contractor who visited Emily at workshops in Scotland and Spain. "It was sweet to see," said Batchelder.

A Dad on a Business Trip

Robert Oliver Calvo, 37, an American citizen living in Barcelona, was a frequent-flier for his work managing properties of the Desigual clothing company. He leaves behind a wife, two children and his parents, who also live in Barcelona and have stayed away from both the crash site and thoughts of Robert's final horrors. "We prefer to be with our grandchildren and with the wife of our son to comfort them," Robert Tansill Oliver told reporters. He urges others grieving to focus on "the wonderful years of life they enjoyed together" with those now lost.

Flowers were left at Düsseldorf airport in memory of those killed in the crash.

said they found no evidence of vision problems, suggesting it could have been psychosomatic.

On top of these worries, his romantic life had grown complicated and his spending erratic of late. Lubitz's long-term girlfriend, a school teacher, may be pregnant, according to reports. And just weeks before the crash, Lubitz bought two Audis.

Now, his parents are among the families making the terrible pilgrimage to the crash site. Lubitz's father, a businessman, "is completely shattered" by what his son did, Bernard Bartolini, mayor of nearby Prads-Haute-Bléone, told France's BFM-TV. Another father, Robert Tansill Oliver, whose son Robert Oliver Calvo was aboard Flight 9525, found sympathy amid his own pain. "I'm really sad for the parents of that young pilot," Oliver says. They too "are feeling, hurting."

SCREENING PILOTS

In the past, pilots admitting to any mental illness were grounded. But in recent years, with better understanding of psychiatric health, that policy has been replaced with an honor system of self-reporting that now has experts questioning if airlines and regulators are doing enough to keep fliers safe. "Self-reporting is not enough and not okay," says J. Reid Meloy, a forensic psychologist specializing in threat assessment. Aside from the fact that a mentally ill pilot is an unreliable judge of his own impairment, Meloy says assessments need to be ongoing, with doctors in "close consultation" with aviation authorities. Privacy, he says, cannot "trump public safety."

Beautiful Voices Silenced

Fresh off a seven-performance run of Wagner's opera Siegfried at the Gran Teatre del Liceu, bass-baritone Oleg Bryjak, 54, and contralto Maria Radner, 34, were flying home with Radner's husband and infant son. "Maria was a delightful young woman," mezzo-soprano Elizabeth Bishop told the Plattsburgh, N.Y., Press-Republican. "They were settling into family life on the road."

Students on an Exchange Trip

Sixteen 14- and 15-year-olds, with two teachers from a secondary school in Haltern am See, Germany, almost missed their doomed flight home after nine days living with host families in Barcelona. Anna Garcia, one of the Spanish students in the exchange program, told local media, "One of the German girls left a bag with all her travel documents at her host family's home. So they didn't hold the rest of the group up, the family took her to the airport and she was able to board the plane." As flowers and candles piled up at the school gates, Pope Francis offered a Palm Sunday prayer for the children.

BEDRIDDEN AT HOME FOR MONTHS, THE SINGER FINALLY REVEALS HOW A CRIPPLING CASE OF LYME DISEASE CHANGED HER FOREVER: 'I'VE REALLY LEARNED WHO I AM'

By GILLIAN TELLING

Photographs by ERIC OGDEN

On a chilly March morning in the Canadian woods, Avril Lavigne tucks her legs underneath her and settles into the giant purple couch in her living room while the acres of pine and birch trees outside gather a light dusting of snow. For the past five months, the pop star, 30, has hidden herself away in the secluded Ontario refuge she shares with husband Chad Kroeger, fighting to regain her health while speculation churned about the reasons for her disappearance. Now Lavigne is finally ready to explain why she vanished: Last spring a tick bite gave her a severe case of Lyme disease that left her bedridden and desperate for answers. At times, "I felt like I couldn't breathe, I couldn't talk, and I couldn't move," Lavigne tells PEOPLE of the ordeal. "I thought I was dying."

A TIME TO HEAL "Sometimes it takes instances like this to put things in perspective," says the singer (at home on March 27) about being sick. "So in a way, I am grateful for all of this."

Realizing Something Was Wrong

Last April, when she was on tour, Lavigne began to feel ill. "It was April 11, and I remember waking up drenched and felt so feverish," she says. Assuming she had the flu, she took cold medicine, but her symptoms got worse. "I had complete weakness and fatigue. One night I tried to brush my teeth on the tour bus and couldn't even stand." She sought help from doctors, who chalked it up to dehydration and exhaustion from touring. "I was like, no," says the Canadian singer, who has worked nonstop since her debut album, Let Go, went platinum in 2002, when she was just 17. "I've been doing this for so long and never felt like this before." After her last public appearance, in September, she tried to celebrate her 30th birthday in Las Vegas with friends. "It was terrible,"

ROCKING ON "Knowing my fans were on standby helped me stay alive inside during some of my darkest times," says Lavigne. From far left: with Kroeger in 2013, at the start of her career in 2002 and greeting the crowd during a concert last June.

'I really just want to enjoy life from here on out'

she remembers. "I could barely eat, and when we went to the pool, I had to leave and go lie in bed. My friends asked, 'What's wrong?' I didn't know."

Lavigne's condition worsened—she couldn't shake off feelings of lethargy and lightheadedness; her body ached more and more, and the once-energetic star soon found it a struggle simply to move. Eventually, two friends who were familiar with Lyme disease (see box) suggested she might have contracted the tick-borne disease. But getting a firm diagnosis wasn't easy. "I had to fight," says Lavigne. "I had doctors tell me I was crazy and they didn't want to test me. I had to learn about it completely on my own" by doing research on the Internet. After several months—and a handful of emergency-room visits and consultations with multiple physicians—her suspicions were confirmed when she was evaluated by a Lyme specialist. "People don't really talk about the disease, and help can be minuscule," Lavigne says. "I have no idea where I got [the tick bite]…. It changed my life completely."

Finding a Refuge from the World

Since October, Lavigne has rarely left her home as she battled the disease. To keep her spirits up, she relied on family, watched movies and kept in touch with her fans through social media. "I never had depression, but being sick and being so terrified, that in itself is depressing," says Lavigne. "I was scared for my life. There were definitely times I couldn't shower for a full week because I could barely stand. It felt like having all your life sucked out of you."

To heal, she endured several courses of antibiotics and overhauled her lifestyle. "[My diet is] sugar-free, dairy-free, gluten-free, all organic. I juice three times a day," says Lavigne, who estimates that she's about "80 percent" recovered now. "I do yoga, meditate and try to swim or walk every day. It's really up and down—you get better, then you get worse, then better."

'I've never been more clear about what I want in life'

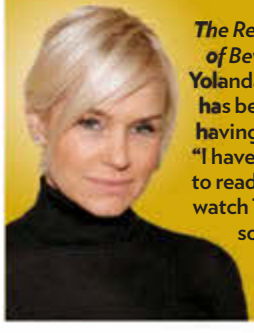

The experience brought her closer to her mom, who stayed at Lavigne's home for months to care for her. Meanwhile Kroeger, 40, in the midst of a world tour with his band Nickleback, comes home as much as possible. "He's been very supportive," Lavigne says, shrugging off rumors of marital strife. Her fans were also there for her in low moments. "They were asking about me since I was MIA, so I mentioned to one fan directly that I wasn't feeling good," Lavigne says of a private Twitter message in December that went viral. "The get-well messages and videos they sent touched me so deeply. I lay in bed watching them and cried so much because I felt loved. It was so powerful and beautiful."

Getting Her Life Back

In the end, Lavigne says, she is "grateful" for "the worst thing" she's ever gone through. "I've never had this much time off in my life," she says. "And I've never been more clear about what I want in life—health, family, love, happiness." While Lavigne and Kroeger are mum on plans to start a family of their own ("We both want [kids]," Kroeger told PEOPLE in 2013. "We just need to find a time we're both at home to get around to it"), the singer has found a new cause: raising awareness about Lyme disease. She's also looking forward to restarting her career, albeit at a saner pace. "This was a wake-up call," she says. Her first project is the single "Fly," to be released in April in support of the 2015 Special Olympics. Lavigne also hopes to one day record a Christmas album and is interested in shooting a movie. "I can't wait to experience life again," she says. "In my darkest of times I told myself, 'You're just in a cocoon right now. When spring comes, you'll be ready to fly.'" ●

What You Need to Know About Lyme Disease

Contracted from a tick bite, Lyme disease is a bacterial infection that causes symptoms ranging from moderate fatigue and muscle pain to debilitating dementia. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, more than 25,000 Americans were diagnosed in 2013. But Dr. Erica Lehman, a tick-borne-disease specialist, says it is "the fastest-growing epidemic in the world" and that the number of cases is "significantly underestimated" because of factors including imperfect testing and symptoms similar to those of Parkinson's, multiple sclerosis and lupus. For more information, go to cdc.gov/lyme.
—NICOLE SANDS

The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills star Yolanda Foster, 51, also has been open about having Lyme disease: "I have lost the ability to read, write or even watch TV. It feels like someone came in and confiscated my brain."

MENTOR MOM "She taught me there was nothing I couldn't do," says DeJoria (left, in 1946 with Yvonne and brother Robert).

Growing up in L.A., John Paul DeJoria never realized how poor his family was. Raised by a single mom, Yvonne, who sewed clothes and hats for a living, DeJoria and his older brother Robert spent their weekdays in foster care, then reunited with their mom on weekends. "We didn't have anything, but we didn't know better," says DeJoria. "She would feed us little bits of caviar and say, 'Boys, we are going to taste what the rich people eat.'" Now 71 and worth an estimated $3 billion from both his Paul Mitchell hair products and Patrón Spirits companies, DeJoria shares the lessons he learned along the way:

BUILDING BRANDS "Successful people do the things unsuccessful people don't want to do," says DeJoria.

Be prepared for rejection After high school and a stint in the Navy, DeJoria sold encyclopedias door-to-door: "I could have 50 doors slammed in my face, but I had better be just as enthusiastic on door 51 or I'm dead."

When the train's a bad one, get off Dozens of jobs (including selling subscriptions at Time Inc.) taught him, "If you don't like your job, change. I did a variety of jobs to see what I wanted to do."

Mad Men

THE GANG SAYS GOODBYE

ONLY 7 EPISODES LEFT! THE ORIGINAL STARS OF TV'S MOST GLAMOROUS CAST CLOSE THE CURTAIN ON A CLASSIC BY CATHERINE KAST & EMILY STROHM Photographs by PETER YANG

For the cast of Mad Men, leaving behind the series that made them household names was no easy task. "There's a difficult process in saying goodbye to anything," Jon Hamm tells PEOPLE of his portrayal of antihero ad exec Don Draper on the AMC drama set in the glitzy Manhattan of the 1960s. "Especially something that's been so meaningful, or so lengthy, or so important." But with the cult series coming to a close after nine years, "we're all trying to hold it together," creator Matthew Weiner says. "It's like everybody's graduating." And like the in crowd of any decent high school, they made sure to go out with a bang when they wrapped shooting last summer. "We had a big party and toilet-papered Matt Weiner's Tesla. We destroyed it!" says January Jones, who fondly remembers 4 a.m. gatherings with costars in the spot between their trailers they called "base camp." "Even people who didn't have to work that day would come in and hang out there and play games." Adds Hamm: "Everyone wanted to be there for the end."

Jon Hamm

Dark and devastatingly handsome, the superficial ways in which Jon Hamm is like his character Don Draper are obvious. But shaking off Don's inner demons after shooting, Hamm says, "was not automatic—that's for sure. It is very challenging to go through, and it takes its toll." And having recently completed a stint in rehab for alcohol abuse, Hamm, 44, seems ready to leave this part in the past. "Taking the suit off, taking the 5 lbs. of glop out of my hair and scrubbing my face—that kind of stuff was very therapeutic," he says. "You want to go back to your life, sit on the couch, eat Pringles and watch The Daily Show."

Elisabeth Moss

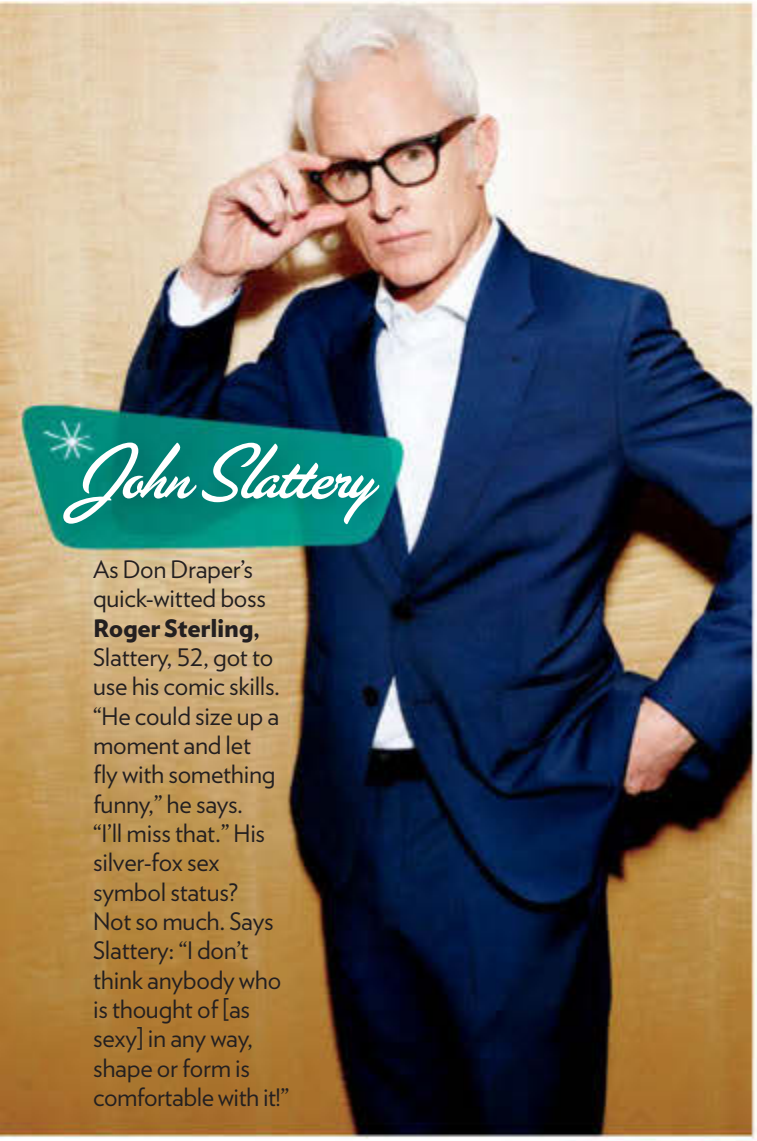

Signing off from her role as secretary-turned-executive Peggy Olson "was a monumental occasion," says Moss, 32. "I was only 23 when we started. This has been nine years of our lives, and to bring that to a close is something that feels big." While she says she'll miss her on-set BFF Jon Hamm, there's one thing Moss won't be so sentimental about. "The panty hose. The wool fabrics. Girdles are just annoying," Moss says, laughing. And no, a retro-style sensibility has not rubbed off on her. "We all have avoided retro for years," she says. "Otherwise it would be like if you played a cop on TV and went to a premiere dressed as a cop!"

PROP STYLIST: MICHAEL BEDNARK STUDIO; STYLIST: CHRISTINE HAHN; (HAMM) SUIT: HUGO BOSS; TIE: CALVIN KLEIN WHITE LABEL

Christina Hendricks

The 39-year-old's life "pretty much changed in every single way" since playing Joan Harris, the sexy former secretary who becomes an agency partner. "When I walk into an audition, they're not shuffling through head shots, trying to figure out who the hell I am!" Even the downsides of fame have been relatively easy to tolerate. "Loss of privacy is major," says the star, who has been married to actor Geoffrey Arend for nearly six years. "But you've just got to get used to that."

John Slattery

As Don Draper's quick-witted boss Roger Sterling, Slattery, 52, got to use his comic skills. "He could size up a moment and let fly with something funny," he says. "I'll miss that." His silver-fox sex symbol status? Not so much. Says Slattery: "I don't think anybody who is thought of [as sexy] in any way, shape or form is comfortable with it!"

January Jones

"I've never been so attached to a character," the self-professed crier of the cast, 37, says of her role as Don Draper's ex Betty. "When we filmed my final scene, I kept asking for more takes because I knew it was the last time that I would ever speak for her." But Jones, who is now on FOX's The Last Man on Earth, says she's looking forward to projects her son Xander, 3, can enjoy too: "He's never watched Mad Men, obviously," she says with a laugh. "I kind of wish he thought I was cooler."

Everyone under the sun is at risk for skin cancer. In fact, 1 in 5 Americans will get skin cancer in their lifetimes, yet only 20% wear sunscreen on a daily basis to prevent against this disease. Daily sunscreen use and annual skin exams can reduce your risk by 50%. Protection and early detection are the key to survival.

The Verdict "Warm lemon water is a great way to start her day—nutrients from the lemon can give the GI tract the push it needs to get things moving. Plus, it can improve skin and boost the immune system," says dietitian Keri Glassman of NutritiousLife.com. "I'd like to see her eat a little protein at breakfast and add a starch to dinner, but greens, whole grains and healthy fats for lunch? She gets an A+. I also love that she indulges in chocolate with her blueberries."

My Tough Year

THE E! HOST OPENS UP ABOUT HER FASHION POLICE CONTROVERSY, THE HEALTH PROBLEM SHE'S KEPT SECRET—AND WHY SHE'S BECOME SHOCKINGLY THIN

BY AILI NAHAS

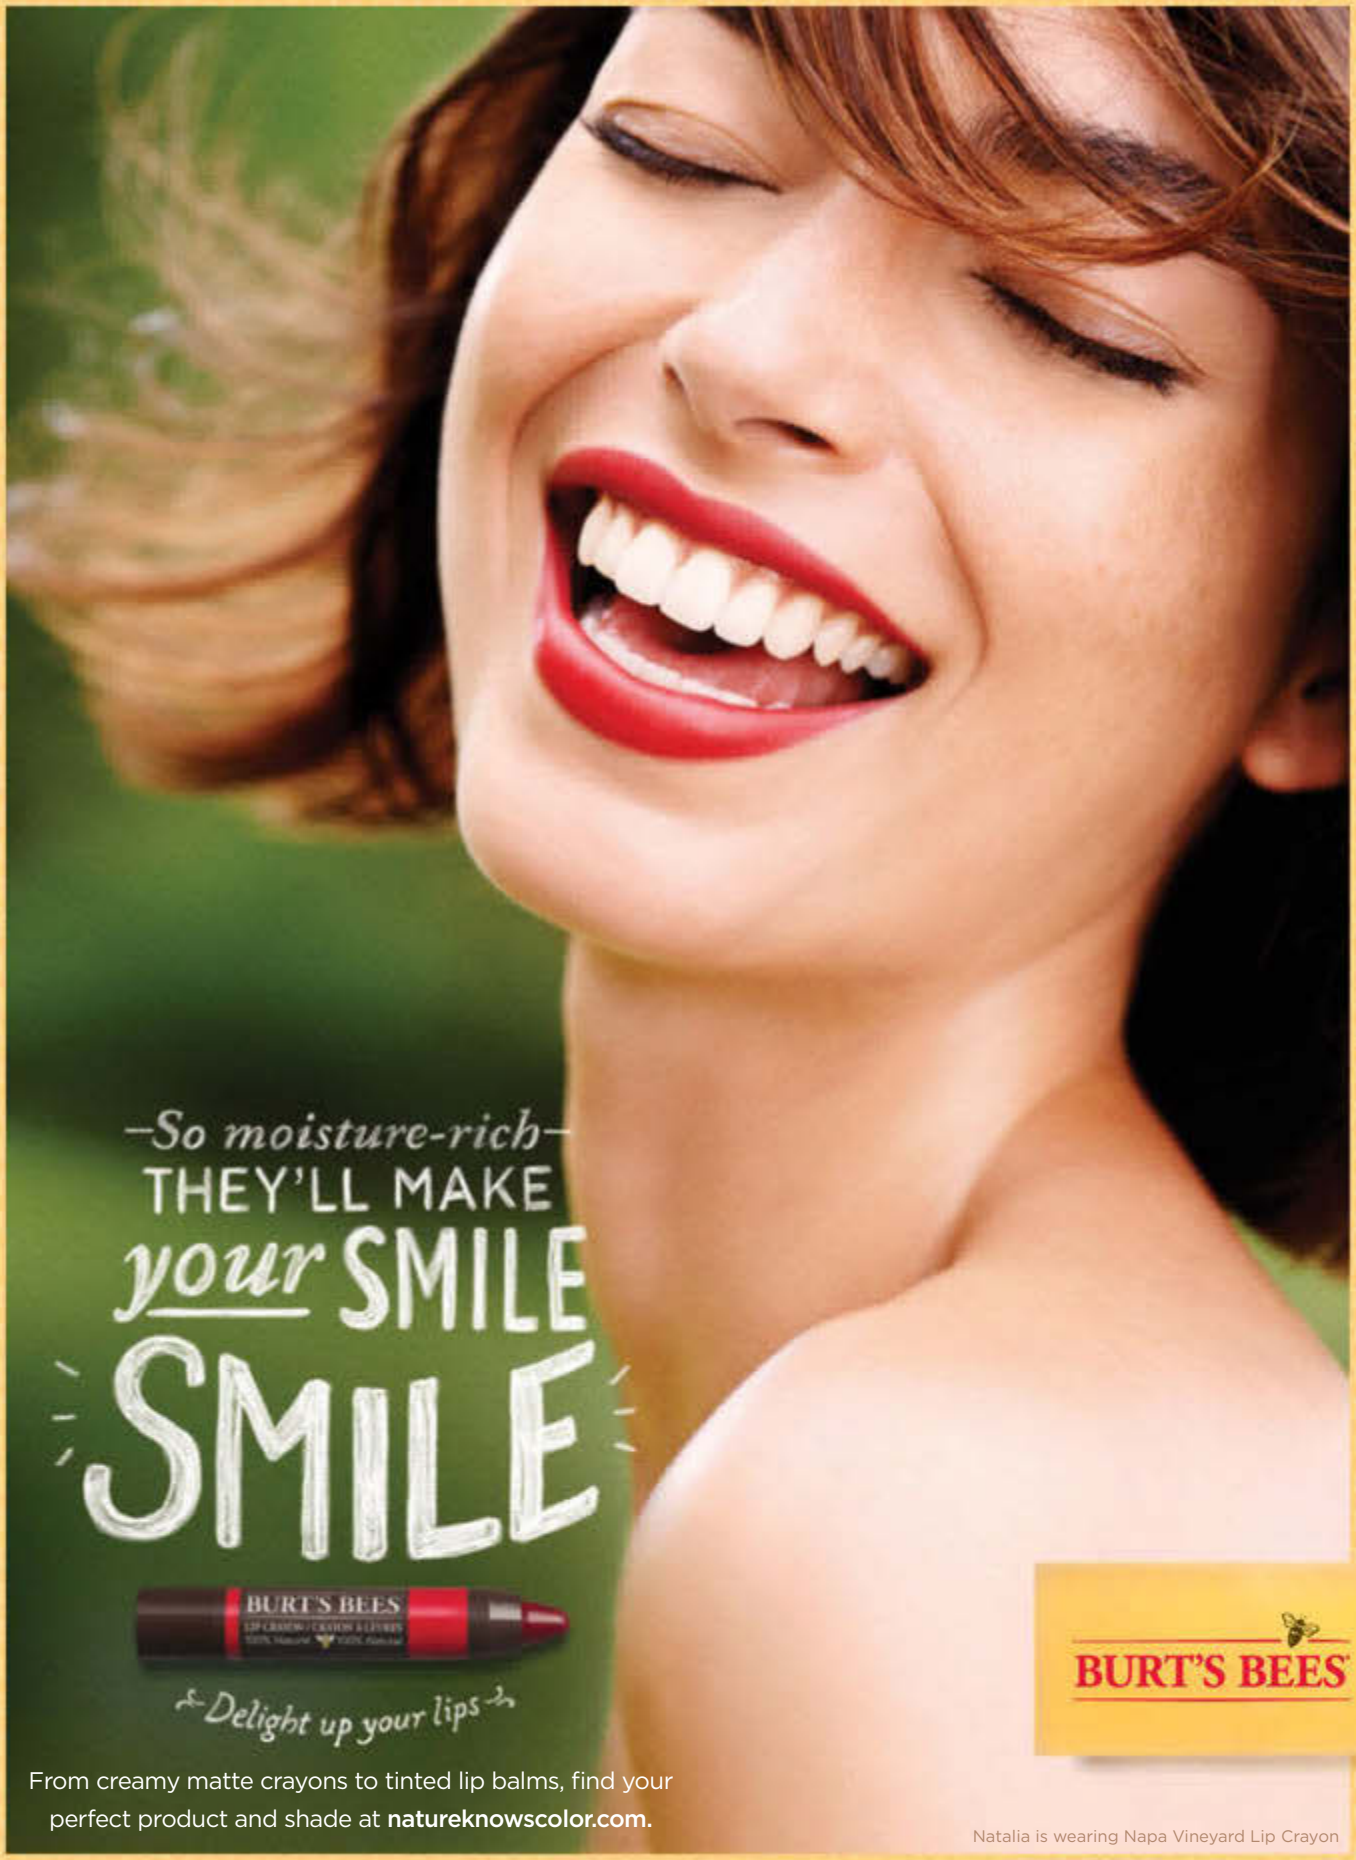

POLICE LINEUP "There were all sorts of problems" with the show, says Rancic (with cohosts Griffin, Osbourne and Brad Goreski).

Giuliana Rancic has revealed intimate moments and bared plenty of private heartache on her reality television series. But when the Twittersphere erupted over her drastically thinner appearance at the Golden Globes on Jan. 11, the E! News anchor and Fashion Police cohost kept the pain she felt to herself. "I was so shocked," she says. "You don't say to someone, 'You look so disgusting, you must have an eating disorder.' If someone really thought I had an eating disorder, what a horrible way to approach it! It was very hurtful."

Now, for the first time, she has decided to address the issue head-on—as well as to open up about that other media firestorm: the uproar following her post-Oscar Fashion Police quip that Zendaya, who sported long dreadlocks on the red carpet, probably smelled of "patchouli oil and weed." After Zendaya spoke out against what she felt were "ignorant slurs," Rancic says she began "getting death threats," and within weeks her Fashion Police cohosts Kelly Osbourne and Kathy Griffin resigned, both referencing their discomfort with the show's direction. (It is on hiatus until the fall.) Through it all Rancic, 40—whose new memoir Going Off Script is out this month—has tried hard to hold on to her naturally sunny

If you had a Straight Talk, Net10, Simple Mobile, or Telcel America "Unlimited" Mobile Service Plan, you may be entitled to a cash refund from a class action settlement.

You must file a claim to receive a cash refund.
Visit www.PrepaidPhoneRefund.com to file a claim.

A federal court authorized this notice.
This isn't a solicitation from a lawyer and you aren't being sued.
This notice may affect your legal rights. Please read it carefully.
Si desea recibir esta notificación en Español, llámenos o visite nuestra página web.

WHAT IS THIS CASE ABOUT?

Consumers have filed a class action lawsuit saying that Straight Talk, Net10, Simple Mobile, and Telcel America advertised "unlimited" wireless plans, but then slowed or cut off data service, or terminated all services, for some customers. The defendants in the case, TracFone Wireless (the owner of those four brands) and Wal-Mart, deny all liability.

WHO IS INCLUDED?

You're eligible for a refund (meaning that you're a "Class Member") if you bought a Straight Talk, Net10, Simple Mobile, or Telcel America mobile service plan with "unlimited" data in the United States, and, at any time between July 24, 2009 and December 31, 2014, you had your data usage "throttled" (slowed), suspended (cut off), or had all of your services terminated by TracFone before the expiration of your service plan. If you had an "unlimited" plan, but aren't sure if your service was throttled (slowed), cut off or terminated, file a claim and the information you provide will be checked against company records to see if you're eligible.

WHAT DOES THE SETTLEMENT PROVIDE?

TracFone has agreed to pay $40 million to a settlement fund. Class Members who file valid claims ("claimants") will receive cash refunds from the fund. Refund amounts will depend on three things: the number of claimants, when you were a customer, and how your service was affected. It is expected that refunds will be at least $2.25 to $6.50 for claimants who had their data service "throttled," at least $10.00 for claimants who had their data service suspended, and $65.00 for claimants who had all of their services terminated. Actual refund amounts may be different depending on the number of claimants. The Settlement Administrator supervising the refund program will use company records and the information you provide in your Claim Form to determine your eligibility and your refund amount. TracFone also has agreed to improve its advertising and customer service as part of the settlement to make its policies clearer to customers. For more information, visit www.PrepaidPhoneRefund.com.

HOW DO I GET A REFUND?

You must file a Claim Form to get a refund. There are two ways to file a Claim Form: (1) File online, at www.PrepaidPhoneRefund.com; or (2) Print a Claim Form, available at www.PrepaidPhoneRefund.com, fill it out, and mail it (with postage) to the address listed on the Claim Form. Claim Forms must be filed online or postmarked by June 19, 2015. If you had more than one phone number with "unlimited" data from Straight Talk, Net10, Simple Mobile or Telcel America between July 24, 2009, and December 31, 2014, you should file a separate Claim Form for each phone number you had. (It's easier to file multiple claims online.)

YOUR OTHER OPTIONS.

If you don't want to make a claim, and don't want to be bound by the settlement and any judgment in this case, you must send a written request to exclude yourself from the settlement, postmarked no later than May 20, 2015. If you exclude yourself, you won't get a refund through this settlement. If you don't exclude yourself and don't submit a claim, you won't receive a refund from the settlement and you will give up the right to sue TracFone or Wal-Mart about the claims in this case. If you don't exclude yourself, you may object to the settlement or to the request for fees by the attorneys representing the Class. The detailed Class Notice, available at www.PrepaidPhoneRefund.com, explains how to exclude yourself or object.

The Court will hold a hearing in the case—In re TracFone Unlimited Service Plan Litigation, No. 13-cv-03440-EMC (N.D. Cal.)—on June 23, 2015 at 2:30 p.m., to consider whether to approve: (1) the settlement; (2) attorneys' fees of up to $5 million plus reimbursement of out-of-pocket litigation costs of up to $100,000, for the attorneys representing the Class, to be paid by TracFone in addition to the $40 million settlement fund; and (3) service awards of $2,500 each for the eight class representatives who represented the Class in this case. You may appear at the hearing, but you don't have to. The Court has appointed attorneys (called "Class Counsel") to represent the Class. These attorneys are listed in the detailed Class Notice. You may hire your own attorney to appear for you, but you will have to pay that attorney.

Drawing Stares on the Red Carpet

"I've been told I'm too thin even when I'm 10 lbs. heavier," says Rancic, who was "shocked" by the firestorm of online debate after her appearance at the 2015 Golden Globes (right). "But weight is very personal. You never know what anyone is going through."

outlook. "Whatever happens, good or bad, there is a purpose that will ultimately expose itself," she says. "That philosophy hasn't failed me yet."

So what is going on with her weight? Rancic says she's fully aware that it's a problem. "I think now is a good time to address it, because it's really gotten out of hand lately," she says. "I never want my weight to distract people from my work." But she insists it's not about what she does or doesn't eat. After undergoing a double mastectomy in 2011, she began taking a commonly prescribed breast cancer drug to help prevent a recurrence and soon noticed that "I started losing weight," she says. "I was eating a lot, so I was concerned." (Her oncologist Dr. Dev Paul of Rocky Mountain Cancer Centers in Denver told her that the drug, which can alter the metabolism, potentially has that effect.) Also contributing to her thinness, Rancic believes, is the stress she's been under since she and her husband, Bill, 43, received a devastating personal blow in December. The couple, whose E! reality show Giuliana & Bill chronicled an emotional struggle with infertility (their son Duke, 2, was born via surrogate), had been hoping to expand their family. Instead, New Year's Eve brought the news that their surrogate had again miscarried (the first miscarriage was recounted on the show in 2014). Now, the Rancics had run out of embryos. "We were so optimistic about the last embryo," says Rancic. "It was really tough news to be dealt."

But the TV host is nothing if not determined to keep moving forward with her life. In her new book she reveals that she suffered from debilitating scoliosis as a teen that deeply scarred her self-image (see box). "It's very hard to camouflage, and it's all you think about all day, every minute of the day," she says, her eyes welling at the memory. "I was always hoping that someday someone would tell me I was pretty. And I just wasn't."

Surgery at age 21 straightened her curved spine, and the fiercely ambi-

Giuliana's Emotional Secret

When I was 13 an orthopedist confirmed the school nurse's finding: I had scoliosis. I was no longer just skinny and awkward: I was crooked. As I hit puberty my right hip rose higher than the other, jutting out at an angle. One side of my chest protruded, which may have been less noticeable if I were curvy to begin with, but that wasn't the case, so I would stuff my bra with Kleenex to even things out into something that did not look like 32A through a fun-house mirror. I was all twisted, and every day the first thing on my mind was how to fool everyone into thinking I was straight. I learned to camouflage my misshapen body by casually leaning against the walls when I could, so the jutting hip became part of a contrived slouch. "Stand up straight!" I was forever being urged by people who had no idea I couldn't. "Oh, whatever, I'm just tired," I would shrug.

"I always wore baggy clothes," says Rancic (at 14).

I actually envied classmates who were overweight or had to wear thick glasses. Every fall a lucky few would return to high school a social caste or two higher than the semester before after losing weight or getting contacts or finding a good dermatologist over the summer. But scoliosis was a different level of ugly.

I masked my deep insecurity by becoming the funny chick, that nutty Italian girl who was every guy's pal but never more. I imagined the surprise and disgust a guy would feel when he felt my jutting shoulder blades, or put his hands on my hips to draw me closer. It was much easier to suck down the loneliness and let everyone run with the assumption that I was playing hard to get.

Weirdly enough, for all my insecurity and self-consciousness, still burning inside me was that same stubborn conviction I'd had since the age of seven, that I was meant to be on camera. I wanted everyone to look at me; I just didn't want anyone to see me.

SUPPORT SYSTEM
"Bill and I are the closest we've ever been," says Rancic (with their son Duke in 2015). "As long as my family is happy, everything else is a bonus."

tious Rancic managed to successfully pursue a career in front of the camera. But the emotional damage—and the bony shoulders her Globes dress highlighted—remain. "I'm shaped a certain way because of the scoliosis," she says. "Even if I gained 20 lbs., the bones in my back would still look the way they do."

'Even through infertility and cancer, I can always find the laughter in everything'

For the next seven years, until she is finished taking the cancer medication, gaining 20 lbs. may not be easy. "I look in the mirror, and it's hard for me," she admits. "I am really thin. I want to look fit and beautiful and sexy and curvy, and I can't." A recent home video she posted received more than 1,000 comments, she says, most of them lambasting her "horrible" appearance. "I'm sorry that people think I'm disgustingly skinny, as they put it, but there's nothing I can do. I eat a very robust, healthy, balanced diet. I eat dessert almost every night. But I'm on cancer medication. I'm doing the best that I can."

Rancic hopes her explanation will quiet at least some of her critics and that the Zendaya incident and the threats it inspired will fade into the past as well. "People were sending me pictures of the barrel of a gun," she recalls. "It was horrifying." She apologized to Zendaya but says the joke she made about patchouli and weed—which she didn't write herself—was taken out of context, so its true meaning was obscured. "It was a reference to hippie culture," Rancic says. "I made peace signs, I said 'boho' twice. But that was edited [out]. I'd say there were 50 sets of eyeballs on-set that day, and not one person thought it had the [racist] undertones that it ended up having once it aired. I felt horrible."

She's looking forward to Fashion Police's return in the fall and insists there's no bad blood between her and her former costars Kelly and Kathy. "Fashion Police without Joan [Rivers, who died in September] was difficult from episode one. It was never quite gelling. I really believe that it was only a matter of time before that specific show with that cast and that format fell apart."

And she's concentrating on enjoying her family. "Bill and I are so in love," she says. "Every night we get on our knees and pray together, and it's really nice." Watching his wife endure the barrage of public criticism has been hard for Bill. "It's been heartwrenching," he says. "But she's stronger than I ever imagined she would be."

In fact, Rancic has retained an admirable perspective on life's adversities. "I could easily get bogged down in a funk every day, especially with everything I've been through the last few years," says Rancic, who still hopes to grow the family, perhaps through adoption. "But every morning I wake up and I make the choice to be happy. Everything I went through has gotten me to where I am today, and I love where I am today. I have an amazing husband and a beautiful baby. I have an incredible life." ●

Deepwater Horizon Oil Spill

Economic and Property Damages Settlement

The Deadline to file a Claim is June 8, 2015

June 8, 2015 has been established as the deadline to submit a claim in the Economic and Property Damages ("E&PD") Settlement with BP Exploration & Production Inc. and BP America Production Company ("BP") related to the Deepwater Horizon Oil Spill. So if you are eligible to file a claim, you must act soon.

Who is included?

The E&PD Settlement Class includes people, businesses, other entities, and properties in the states of Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi, and certain counties in Texas and Florida, that were harmed by the Deepwater Horizon oil spill that occurred on April 20, 2010. The website DeepwaterHorizonSettlements.com has detailed descriptions and maps of the included geographic locations to help you determine whether you are a part of the E&PD Settlement Class. Additionally, you can call 1-866-992-6174 or e-mail questions@DeepwaterHorizonEconomicSettlement.com to find out if a geographic location is included.

What are the payment categories?

The settlement provides payments if you had economic loss or property damage because of the Deepwater Horizon oil spill. By submitting a claim, you can request a payment in one or more of the following seven categories:

- Economic Damage
- Loss of Subsistence
- Vessel Physical Damage
- Real Property Sales Damage
- Vessels of Opportunity Charter Payment
- Coastal Real Property Damage
- Wetlands Real Property Damage

Economic Damage payments are available for Individuals and Entities that lost profits or earnings as a result of the Deepwater Horizon Incident. Coastal Real Property payments are available for property that was physically damaged in connection with the Deepwater Horizon Incident. Detailed descriptions of all seven categories are available at the website.

There is no limit on the total dollar amount of the E&PD Settlement. All qualified and timely claims will be paid in full once they are approved. The Settlement also allowed for Seafood Compensation claims, but the deadline for those claims has passed.

How do I request a payment?

You must submit a Claim Form to request a payment. You can get a copy of the various Claim Forms by visiting the website or by calling 1-866-992-6174. Claims can be submitted online or by mail. If you have questions about how to file your claim, you should call the toll-free number for assistance. The claims process can be complex, so if you are eligible to file a claim, you should act now so you may complete your claim before the June 8, 2015 deadline.

Poached Eggs with Grilled Bread

THE HOST OF FOOD NETWORK'S ALL-STAR ACADEMY SHARES A 'DELICIOUS BREAKFAST OR BRUNCH TREAT'

TED ALLEN

- 4 thick slices whole-grain crusty bread
- Extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 (5-oz.) bag spinach or arugula
- Kosher salt
- Freshly ground black pepper
- 4 jumbo eggs
- ½ cup grated Gruyère cheese

1. Brush bread slices with olive oil on both sides. In a skillet, under a broiler or on a grill pan heated to medium-high, toast until golden brown. Set aside.
2. Heat 1 tbsp. olive oil in a large sauté pan over medium-high heat. Add garlic and cook, stirring constantly for 30 seconds. Add spinach, season to taste with salt and pepper, and cook, stirring constantly for 1 minute or until wilted. Set aside.
3. Fill a 12-in. saucepan with about an inch of water, and heat to boiling. Reduce the heat so the water simmers, and add ½ tsp. salt.
4. Crack an egg into a small bowl and season with salt and pepper. Slip the egg gently into the simmering water and repeat with remaining eggs. Cook until the whites are set and the yolks are still very runny, about 2 minutes.
5. Top bread slices with wilted spinach. Remove the eggs with a slotted spoon and place on top of the spinach. Sprinkle with the cheese, salt and pepper and serve immediately.
Serves: 2 to 4
Prep time: 10 minutes
Cook time: 15 minutes

Expert Tip!
"Add a teaspoon of vinegar or lemon juice to the poaching liquid to get prettier eggs with perfect, clean edges," says Allen.

Best of SPRING BEAUTY!

IN THE BUFF
These neutral shades were inspired by Bobbi Brown spokeswoman Kate Upton's beachy vibe, but they're sexy enough for a night out too. Bobbi Brown Hot Nudes Eye Palette, $65; bobbibrowncosmetics.com

BRUSH UP
Might we suggest scooping up two sets of these ombré bristle brushes: one for your kit—and the other to display on your vanity. Sonia Kashuk Art of Makeup Brush Cup, $6.99, and Ten-Piece Brush Set, $35.99; target.com

BE MY BB
Containing antioxidant-rich argan oil, and with an SPF of 30, this multi-tasking cream tops our list of glow getters. Physicians Formula Argan Wear Ultra-Nourishing Argan Oil BB Cream, $14.95; at drugstores

SHEER GENIUS
Give your red lipstick a rest and instead glide on this lightweight formula, which subtly tints lips. Marc Jacobs Beauty New Nudes Sheer Lip Gel, $30; sephora.com

NAILING IT
Kate Hudson upped the spring mani game when she stepped out wearing this two-tone look. Tenoverten Nail Polish in Washington and Mulberry, $18 each; sephora.com

JUNGLE JUICE
This fruity yet sensual scent was inspired by luxe materials like python skin! Jimmy Choo Exotic, $90 for 3.3 oz. EdT; nordstrom.com

Kendall Jenner's Huge New Gig

"Don't overthink it—just put them on and do your thing," says the new face of Calvin Klein Jeans of the secret to pulling off the brand's limited-edition Denim Series for Opening Ceremony.

WHAT'S ON OUR STYLE RADAR

Jaime King's Under-$100 Outfit

Not only is the Hart of Dixie star serving up fresh spring style inspiration with her cheery ensemble, but she's doing it on a budget. Her mixed-print look is from the new MILLY for DesigNation collection at Kohl's and costs just $90—significantly less than her $1,500 Hayden Lasher bag.

Kiehl's Eco-Friendly Eye Cream

Elizabeth Olsen tapped artist Fernando Mastrangelo to design a limited-edition label for the brand's bestseller, with 100 percent of the net profits (up to $50,000) going to Recycle Across America.

Ted Kennedy's Treasures

THE LATE SENATOR'S OFFICE—FROM PHOTOS TO LETTERS AND DOG BOWLS—HAS BEEN RE-CREATED AT BOSTON'S EDWARD M. KENNEDY INSTITUTE

For almost 47 years he was known as the Lion of the Senate. Yet anyone calling on Sen. Ted Kennedy at his Capitol Hill office was greeted by a sentimental lamb. "Teddy would put visitors at ease by showing them all these things from the people and places he loved," his widow, Vicki Kennedy, tells PEOPLE. Replicated in exact detail at the Edward M. Kennedy Institute for the U.S. Senate in Boston, opening March 30, the collection includes a scolding from matriarch Rose Kennedy when he was 40. "I noticed…you are quoted using the word 'ass.'…I am sure you realize it really does not look very well in print. Love, Mother." Says Vicki: "He was a family man. And he could really laugh at himself."

—SANDRA SOBIERAJ WESTFALL

The Kennedy Legacy
"Uncle Ted" (with his grandchildren) had three children of his own and was a father figure to the children of his slain brothers JFK and RFK.

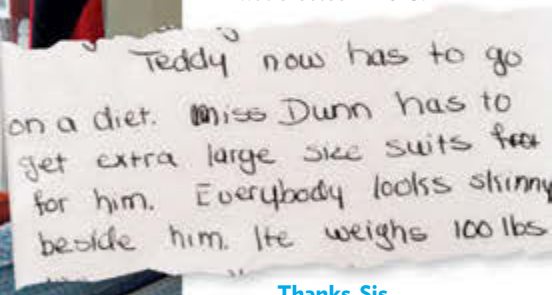

Keeping the Memories Alive
Kennedy kept this bronze bust of President John F. Kennedy, along with one of their brother Bobby, over the working fireplace.

Irish Roots
Dunganstown, Ireland, is where Kennedy's great-grandfather was born and where his own statue was erected in 2013.

Thanks, Sis
In a letter to their dad about 8-year-old Ted—the youngest of nine—Jean expressed concern about his weight.

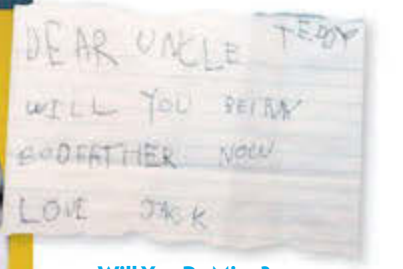

Father & Son
Kennedy died in '09, before son Patrick had kids of his own. "He would've loved seeing Patrick so happy as a dad, playing games his father played with him," says Vicki.

About a Boy
Along with her childhood letter pronouncing him chubby, Ted's sister Jean gave him "some nice, cute pictures of me in my sailor suits," Kennedy said in dictation archiving the collection.

Will You Be Mine?
Caroline's son Jack asked Ted to be his new godfather after Anthony Radziwill died.

Office Mates
Bowls and balls were at the ready for Kennedy's Portuguese Water Dogs, Splash and Sunny, who often accompanied him to work.

One Last Thing

William H. Macy

The actor, 65, stars in the April 5 season finale of the Showtime comedy Shameless

Last gift I gave
It was swimwear for my 12-year-old daughter Georgia, who's going to Bora Bora. The stuff I usually get her looks like a pair of coveralls compared to the stuff she'll choose.

Last time I was starstruck
I ran into Kevin Costner at the Rachael Ray Show. You know that awful feeling when you don't know what you're saying but you're just praying it's not idiotic? I was doing that.

Last home improvement
I built a bridge in my backyard. It's a curved sort of Japanese-style bridge. I'm a woodworker, and I have a shop [at home]. I've always wanted to build one but I've never had anyplace to put it, so I hired a guy to build a stream so we could put the bridge across it.

Last TV show I watched
It was probably with my oldest daughter [Sophia, 14], and I'm afraid it was Friends. The girls go through and binge watch, especially when they're sick or they get a day off from school.

Last time I made my wife [Felicity Huffman] smile
Every night when we get in bed, she says, "I love that we get to get in bed together!" We've been married for a long time, and we've been getting in bed together for a longer time. I thought my Screen Actors Guild acceptance speech would be a great time to tell her that I love going to bed with her too.
